EARL CARROLL STILL UNCONSCIOUS

WITH HER STRICKEN MATE

MRS. EARL CARROLL

As soon as she was advised that her husband was stricken and removed from a train at Greenville, S. C., while en route to Atlanta to serve a year for perjury in connection with his famous bathtub party, Mrs. Carroll hastened to his bedside.

IN STATE OF COMA 31 HOURS

Greenville, S. C., April 14 (Special).—At 2 o'clock today Earl Carroll was still unconscious. This was 31 hours after his lapse into a state of coma. Mrs. Carroll, Mrs. Alice Carroll Snyder, sister, and Norman Carroll, brother, arrived this afternoon.

Greenville, S. C., April 14 (A.P.).—Earl Carroll, theatrical producer, who collapsed yesterday on the train bearing him to the Atlanta Federal Penitentiary, where he is to serve a year and a day for perjury, showed slight signs of improvement today, his physicians reported, as he had entered the 29th known hour of coma.

Dr. C. C. Bates, one of the producer's physicians, said that, although an improvement had been noted, Carroll's condition still is considered serious.

Dr. Bates declared he patient "is rapidly regaining use of muscles that were lost yesterday and we hope he may recover consciousness during the day."

The physicians so far have been

PUNCH AIR RECORD FULL O' HOLES

"50 HOURS OR BUST—AND THERE AIN'T NO BUST"

The big monoplane, the Bellanca, which flew continuously over New York from Tuesday until today in setting a new world's non-stop endurance record. The civilian pilots, Bert Acosta and Clarence Chamberlain, had declared they'd fly "fifty hours or bust"—and they didn't "bust." They'll next try the U. S. to Paris non-stop flight.

VAST CROWDS ACCLAIM 2 FLIERS WHO SMASH AIR MARK BY 6 HOURS

Mineola, N. Y., April 14 (A.P.).—Bert Acosta and Clarence D. Chamberlin, civilian aviators, landed at 12:42 p. m., after setting a new record for endurance flying by remaining in the air for 51 hours, 12 minutes.

As soon as the plane landed the cheering crowd broke through police lines and swarmed about the record-breaking aircraft and the two aviators who had been in the air for well over two days.

For the half-hour before the landing the plane hung above the field at an altitude of about 3,000 feet, coursing slowly backward and forward.

LANDING IS PERFECT.

At 12:35 it dropped toward the earth and the spectators cheered as they thought a landing was about to be made. The plane banked off, however, and climbed again, repeating this performance a second time before the actual landing was made.

The landing was described by aviators on the field as being an excellent example of good flying.

The plane landed without apparent shock on the runway and glided to a graceful stop. The time when the plane struck the runway was 12:42.

The record-breaking performance eclipsed by six hours the previous world's record of 45 hours, 11 minutes and 39 seconds.

By the time of the landing the crowd had swelled to thousands and was held in check by ropes stretched along the runway and by police reserves called out when the throng became unmanageable for police first

HARVARD STUDENTS AID MOVE TO SAVE SACCO

Harvard students today raised their voices in protest against the dooming of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti to death in the electric chair.

While petitions are being circulated on the Harvard campus calling on Governor Fuller to exert his power of clemency on behalf of the convicted radical slayers, a mass meeting of the students was held at a luncheon in Cambridge, the meeting being called for the express purpose of protesting against the planned execution of the men.

The members of the Philosophic Society of Princeton University wired to Governor Fuller asking for appointment of an impartial committee to review the Sacco-Vanzetti evidence. Two Smith College girls, Lda Holt and Evelyn Sealey, also wired the Governor asking a review of the case.

Two outstanding letters were among those given out at the Governor's office. One was from A. Lincoln Filene, in which he declared that "if there was ever a time when you should have the backing of the conservative citizens of the Commonwealth, it is in this crucial situation."

The other was from Attorney Elmer H. Fletcher of Brockton, who, in a remarkable human-interest

The forest fire menace throughout the State today caused Governor Fuller to issue a proclamation closing the woods to the public and postponing the reopening of the trout fishing season, scheduled for tomorrow. The proclamation is effective immediately.

NEW YORK TRADING IS QUIET

Trading on the New York Stock Exchange, which will be closed tomorrow (Good Friday), was much quieted down in the closing period. Active leaders were firm. General Motors sold within a fraction of its year's high. Utilities were in demand.

MARINES BATTLE BLAZE NEAR HINGHAM ARSENAL

Summer cottages were destroyed, one home was burned, barns were demolished and the ammunition depot at Hingham endangered when a wall of fire, starting in the woods in Fresh street, South Hingham, today, raged unchecked and swept a path a mile long through woods and underbrush.

Marines at the ammunition depot manned their fire fighting apparatus and joined ranks with the apparatus from Hingham, Hull and Weymouth summoned in a general alarm hours before. Two cottages

BRUINS CHARGED WITH BEATING UP REFEREE

Ottawa, Ont., April 14 (A.P.).—Charges that Boston's hockey players precipitated an attack on Referee Jerry Laflamme after last night's deciding triumph by the Ottawa Senators over the Bruins in the Stanley Cup world's series, have been lodged with the National Hockey League's president, Frank Calder, the Ottawa Journal declared today.

The Journal asserted that the close of the series was marked by "one of the most disgraceful scenes that has ever marred professional hockey."

The referee's report of the fracas, according to the Journal, names Billy Coutu, spare defense player of the Boston team, as "the main culprit."

"Coutu jumped on La Flamme and knocked him down, and according to reports, Manager Art Ross and even Charlie Adams, Boston owner, were involved in the tussle.

"The whole Boston team was milling around La Flamme, who went down. Billy Bell, who rushed to the assistance of his coreferee, was carried off his feet by the crush of the Brown Jerseys.

"The riot occurred near the of-

BARE MOTHERLY KISSES IN HECKMAN LOVE SUIT

Admission that she kissed young young John Milton Heckman, but that the kisses she pressed on his lips were only "motherly" kisses, was made by Mrs. Edna Marvin, 66-year-old wealthy Cambridge widow, to Attorney William G. Thompson, it was testified in Middlesex Superior Civil Court today.

Thompson, who is counsel for Sacco and Vanzetti in the internationally-famed murder case, said he was counsel for Mrs. Marvin more than three years ago prior to a $100,000 suit brought against her by Heckman's wife.

The lawyer was the principal witness today in the suit for $30,000 brought against the wealthy widow by Heckman, former grocer's boy, who claims he was paid $25 a week to woo the widow until his divorce

WORCESTER MAN SLAIN WITH AXE, MONEY GONE

Worcester, April 14.—In a room that showed evidence of a desperate struggle, Joseph Babbitt, aged 63, a wire worker, was found murdered today. Six deep wounds in the skull and face, apparently inflicted by a hatchet, a cleaver or an axe, indicated the method of the killer.

The police, trying to reconstruct the murder scene, were working on the theory that Babbitt was slain by robbers. It is known that he was showing a roll of money yesterday, claiming that it was won in a pool.

'Bring Me Just a Bit of French Sod' ∾ Is Plea of War Hero's ∾ Mother to Veterans

HIS BEST FRIENDS WHO GRIEVE
Mrs. Mary E. Akins of Raynham Center, who has addressed through the Boston Evening American, a most touching request to American Legionaires who will visit France this year, is shown here with the dog that was the pet of her dead son.

WHAT VETERAN WILL GRANT WISH?
Mrs. Akins' letter—the request of a love-hungry mother-heart who gave her son to his country (and to yours!)—asks for just a bit of sod—the soil where he's buried—in which she may grow flowers to his cherished memory.

A HERO MOURNED
It is for him that his mother makes her request. She asks for the soil to grow plants as a shrine to her boy. (See story on page 3)

SHE WOULD PAY IF SHE COULD
"I would give $100,000 for a little bit of the earth out of the graveyards over there if I were only able," this war mother wrote to the veterans through the Helping Hand department of the Boston Evening American. Boston Evening American Staff Photo

OFFERED HOME TO WOUNDED VETS
Mrs. Akins a year ago offered to have some of the men from the veteran's hospitals stay at her farm, where they would have every comfort—free of all cost. That was before she ever had a thought of asking the veterans for a favor.

HARVARD STUDENTS JOIN IN MOVE TO AID SLAYERS

story, tells the tragedy that followed in the wake of the slaying of Postmaster Fred Parmenter, at Braintree, seven years ago—the beginning of the present case.

While the agitation at Harvard was at its height, the girls of Barnard College joined their sister students at Wellesley and the faculty at Mt. Holyoke in lodging formal petitions with Governor Fuller, calling on him to review the cases of Sacco and Vanzetti before permitting the men to die in the chair at Charlestown State Prison the week of July 10, as ordered by Trial Judge Webster Thayer.

Barnard is the woman's college of Columbia University, New York, and the resolutions from the students of the college were signed by Mary Dublin, secretary to the Representative Assembly of the Undergraduate Association of the college.

The resolution from the Barnard College girls follows:

"Whereas, The Supreme Court of Massachusetts found the Sacco-Vanzetti trial to be in proper form and sustained the former verdict without review of testimony; and,

"Whereas, Judge Thayer, who not only tried the case the first time but has been adequately proved prejudiced by affidavits sworn to by five prominent citizens of Boston, was the only judge to examine the evidence; and,

"Whereas, The court records do not contain all that should be known about the case, we, the members of the Representative Assembly of Barnard College, do urge the apointment of a committee of impartial citizens to investigate the case."

Meanwhile, United States Senator David I. Walsh has given no intimation on what action he will take on the request that he exert the power of his office to have the archives of the United States Department of Justice thrown open to the Sacco-Vanzetti defense committee.

WANT LETTERS REVEALED.

This committee claims that the Department of Justice has thousands of letters bearing on the Sacco-Vanzetti case in its vaults and that these letters, written by men and women interested in the two men have never been made public. Most of them, it is claimed, have never even been opened.

Members of the defense committee are also anxious to show just what part the agents of the Department of Justice played in the prosecution of the two men when they were found guilty in Dedham court, seven years ago, of slaying a Braintree paymaster and his guard. It is for these murders the men must die, unless Governor Fuller intervenes.

Petitions, demands and requests in connection with the case continue to pour in on Governor Fuller, who is the only power that can save the doomed men from the chair.

The messages asking the Governor to intervene, or at least appoint a commission to study the case are in the majority, but today letters urging the Governor to see that the law is carried out showed a marked increase.

The letters urging the Governor to maintain a policy of "hands off" and to permit the law to take its course come from as many different points of the country as do the letters seeking clemency.

WANTS "COURTS UPHELD."

Letters upholding the sentencing of Sacco and Vanzetti were received by the governor from Charles H. Hardwick of Quincy who termed himself "one of Governor Fuller's many admirers"; Atty. Albert A. Gleason of No. 60 State street, and the Employers' Association of Jackson, Mich.

"In the policemen's strike Massachusetts had a Calvin Coolidge and in this more important crisis I am glad we have an Alvan T. Fuller," read the letter of Mr. Hardwick.

The letter of Atty. Gleason says, "A full and complete trial has been given these men. Our courts must be upheld."

The letter from the Employers' Association of Jackson, Michigan, signed by Lewis Atherton, said: "I trust that no pressure will permit you to modify in any degree the action of your court."

As a result of rumors that letters had been received from Vanzetti, written in his cell in the Dedham jail, the prisoner faces loss of the privilege of writing. It was reported that Vanzetti has sent out two communications.

FILENE WRITES TO FULLER ON SACCO CASE

A. Lincoln Filene, general manager and treasurer of William Filene's Sons Company, in a letter to Governor Fuller on the Sacco-Vanzetti case, today declared that "if there was ever a time when you should have the backing of the conservative citizens of the Commonwealth it is in this crucial situation." Mr. Filene's letter follows:

"What you said the other morning at the New England Council meeting, viz. that you felt you had not been receiving the backing of the business men in what you are trying to do for Massachusetts, has been in my mind many times since.

"It is particularly so at this moment in view of the situation that has arisen in the Sacco-Vanzetti case. I don't know whether you happened to see the editorial in yesterday's New York World and in case you didn't I am enclosing a copy of it.

SHOULD HAVE BANKING.

"I believe it expresses in as clear cut a way as possible, what would be the attitude of thinking citizens of Massachusetts. It seems to me that if you are not already getting evidence from business men of a desire to help in this matter, you ought to for if there was ever a time when you should have the backing of the conservative citizens of the Commonwealth, it is this critical situation. If I can be of any help I shall be very glad to be called on.

"I believe that I am expressing the desire of thousands in saying I hope the action you take will bring about what is so clearly and fairly expressed in this editorial, the writer of which I do not know."

THE EDITORIAL.

The editorial referred to by Mr. Filene pointed out in substance that, under the Massachusetts court system, the Supreme Judicial Court did not pass a review upon the whole mass of evidence respecting Sacco and Vanzetti. The editorial said that the New York Court of Appeals or an English court of common appeal would have been in a position, if the Sacco and Vanzetti case were placed before it, to review the whole record and decide whether the conviction should stand.

The Massachusetts Supreme Court passed only on the technical points as to whether Judge Thayer, in ruling as he did on many crucial points, had the right to use his discretion. The editorial concludes by saying that Governor Fuller has the right to intervene by virtue of his executive office and suggests that he review the matter once more in a human and non-technical way to make sure and doubly sure justice is done.

Women Cause Biggest Change in U. S. History

New Orleans, La., April 14.—Women and their new-found economic independence were labeled as the cause of the greatest change this country has ever known, by Judge Ben B. Lindsey, famous juvenile court judge, in a lecture here.

"The very fact alone that women are entering the business world today through channels that in my mother's day were never even dreamed of, is the most important change this country has ever seen," declared the eager little black-haired judge.

decree should become final and he could marry Mrs. Marvin.

Heckman alleges that when the time came for the suggested marriage to the widow, she asked that she be released from her promise and told him she would continue to pay him $35 a week if he would give the release.

In his testimony today, Attorney Thompson said that Mrs. Marvin had denied to him any improprieties with Heckman, either when he was delivering groceries at her door or later, after his marriage.

The denial was made prior to the alienation suit.

HEART THROBS IN LETTER OF FLETCHER TO FULLER

A letter that throbs with human interest was received by Governor Fuller today in connection with the Sacco-Vanzetti case from Attorney Elmer H. Fletcher of the firm of Fletcher & Stone of Brockton.

The letter is unusual in that it makes no request of the Governor for action either way in the present case.

CRIME STORY

Mr. Fletcher's letter follows:

"I wish to tell you a brief history of what this terrible crime has meant to one family. I knew Fred Parmenter when he was a boy. We went through the Brockton High School as classmates. We were always friends.

"He married a splendid type of American womanhood and built a home in Avon, Mass., near the Brockton line. Two beautiful children, a boy and a girl, came to bless their home and make Fred Parmenter and his wife supremely happy.

He proved a trustworthy employe and was successful in his chosen calling. He was getting along to where his home was largely paid for, as the result of his own earnings and frugality.

WAS MURDERED

Suddenly, without the slightest warning, he was brutally murdered while in the performance of his duty. The heart-broken wife and mother struggled on to support her children and to educate them for their battle in life.

"I used to advise her about some of her small business and legal affairs. I saw her turned from a happy wife and mother to a white-haired, sad-faced little lady, but one who always tried to smile through her tears.

"She had to sell their little home and buy another in South Easton—one which was cheaper, which could be maintained at less cost and which could be carried on within her means. Her boy and girl were growing up and she was sturdily trying to do her duty by them.

"One day her boy and one of his boson school chums were arrested for breaking and entering the South Easton railroad station and the Northeastern High School. I was employed to defend the two boys. The facts are briefly these:

ONLY BOYS

"The youngsters were only fourteen or fifteen years old and at the time conceived the idea that they would carry on a checkered career. Others had and had received no punishment, why not they?

"They used to go to bed at the usual hour, await the retirement of their respective parents, then sneak out and join each other and proceed to their depredations as planned, through the dead hours of the night, and return to their homes at from 2 to 4 a. m.

"In these midnight marauding they carried for their protection a loaded shotgun which they had in some way secured and kept hidden. How fortunate no one ever happened to meet them to apprehend them when they had the gun.

"They broke into the toolshed of the railroad at South Easton and took out upon the track a gasoline power railroad velocipede and ran it to North Easton, broke into the high school building and stole some minor articles of no particular value.

READ STORIES

"They broke into the railroad station at South Easton and stole railroad tickets—some small amount of change and other small articles of no particular value, and then soon after were detected.

Ice Cream Soda a Fizz in U. S., but Fizzle in England

New York, April 14 (A.P.)—The American ice cream soda will never be popular in England, due to the climate, George M. Gales, president of the Louis E. Liggett Drug Store Company, said as he boarded the Cunard liner Mauretania for Europe.

"The American wants something to cool him," he explained, "but the Englishman needs something to warm him."

In 700 drug stores operated in England by a syndicate of which he is a director, not one has a soda fountain, he said. "Yes is the only thing that can compete with whiskey and soda in the English climate," he said.

poor little chaps got their inspiration and I found out that they had read a few stories of the adventurous type and they knew that the Parmenter boy's father had been shot by bandits and no one had been brought to justice, and hence, why couldn't they do as they saw fit?

"I did not defend them. I couldn't. I insisted on the whole story being told to Judge Frederick Austin of Taunton, before whom they were brought for disposition as juvenile offenders.

"His great heart melted on hearing this story. He knew that they were not bad boys and put them on probation and they have made no more trouble.

ANOTHER BLOW

"But how about the little mother? She had suffered another terrible blow, no doubt, as a more or less direct result of the tragedy. It became afflicted with cancer. Her powers of resistance were greatly reduced and it was but a short story. She passed on, January 13, 1925, leaving her two orphan children for others to care for.

"I assisted in the settlement of her estate and in securing the appointment of a relation as guardian for her orphan children, and they are now growing to young manhood and womanhood—robbed of a father's care by a foul murder and of the protecting love and care of a mother as a result of that same murder."

FIND RICH GIRL RUNAWAYS NEAR HUB

A story of two young girls, daughters of New York millionaires, who fled the exclusive Wheeler School in Providence and lived almost an entire week of adventure on a farm near Boston, leaked out in Providence today when detectives returned them to their homes in New York.

Although Helen Grant, who is thirteen and whose dad is millionaire proprietor of the Grant chain stores, has had every wish fulfilled that money could gratify, she figured, like Martha Muzzey, 15, also daughter of millions, that there was adventure outside the money world.

For several weeks they had told other pupils at the Wheeler School and also their parents, that they intended hunting for this adventure, but all thought they were talking lightly and forgot the hints.

But last Friday night the two girls vanished from the school and—it is known now—registered at a Providence hotel under assumed names.

They "checked out" on Saturday and dropped from sight until detectives found them indulging in their great adventure—on a farm.

The adventure consisted of milking, churning, running the general farm machinery and making some show of planting.

To the girls who had known nothing but money and the silks and satins and service it buys, the farm life was adventure.

PLANS SHRINE TO MEMORY OF SON

It's just nine years next Wednesday that the heart of a mother died in a little farmhouse in Raynham as a stalwart son, staring, startled with fingers curved in unfeeling grip, pitched forward and lay still—a hero of the war.

Harry Akins, true son of a true mother, had died with his face toward the enemy.

Almost nine years have passed since that day on the calendar, that was April 29, 1918; but even though the months add to the months and time is supposed to heal all hurts, there is still, on the anniversary, a bowed white head in the little farmhouse at Raynham, where Mrs Mary Akins lives—but not her heart.

Over in Mt. Auburn Cemetery, beside which, some day, the mother will lie if fortune smiles upon her sufficiently to allow her moving from the Raynham farm, Harry is buried in the casket that enclosed him on the journey back from France, long after the rumble of guns had died away.

BIT of FRANCE'S SOIL

But now the mother wants some remembering veteran—a veteran of the YD would be preferred—to bring her back a bit of France's soil when he returns from the Legion pilgrimage that she may plant it with flowers and hold it as a shrine.

Here is her letter, written from No. 99 South Main street, Raynham Center, to the Boston Evening American—and the veterans will come forward:

"I am going to ask you, through your edition, if you could publish this little ad for me.

Alienists Examine Gray as Death Trial Is Nearing

New York, April 14.—Henry Judd Gray was examined by four alienists today, the forerunner of an anticipated court battle over his sanity when he goes on trial with Mrs. Ruth Snyder for the murder of Albert Snyder, art editor.

Dr. Thomas S. Cusack of Kings Park State Hospital, and Dr. Siegfried Block of Green Point Hospital, examined the corset salesman on behalf of Samuel L. Miller, counsel for Gray.

Representing District Attorney Newcombe, who announced he will fight every move to show Gray insane, were Drs. Sylvester R. Lasby and Stephen Jewett, both of New York State and Bellevue Hospitals.

The examination occurred in a room in the Queens County court house at Long Island City where the accused couple will go on trial Monday.

It was understood that Gray was questioned at length about his love affairs, his actions while drinking and the effect on him of prohibition liquor. The alienists also probed into the details of his childhood.

Dr. Cusack made it plain that he will withdraw from the case "if I don't find what I expect."

COOL WAVE WILL LINGER IN HUB

Continued cool weather is the official forecast of local conditions for the coming 36 hours.

Sunny skies with moderate temperatures prevail from Montana to New England, with no indications on the map today of any important warm wave.

The agricultural and cotton belts of the West and Southwest are enjoying much-needed rains, but there is little hope of that storm area reaching here to wet down the tinder-like forest areas.

Forecast for Boston and vicinity: Fair tonight and Friday; not much change in temperature; fresh north to west winds.

Rocky Mountain States Are Facing a "White Easter"

Denver, Colo., April 14 (A.P.).—Rocky Mountain States today faced a white Easter unless warm weather forecasts materialize immediately to melt a heavy blanket of snow.

Approval of stockmen of heavy precipitation from the Canadian border to central New Mexico, changed to anxiety last night after the storm continued three days to smother ranges at Sheridan, Wyo., under sixteen inches of snow. Several points in central Wyoming reported twelve inches of snow, while others received from two to six inches.

While the storm generally was regarded as an aid to crops and ranges, it interrupted traffic including air mail planes which were forced down for from 24 to 36 hours.

Arizona reported normal conditions last night following the unusual cold wave in that section while Montana had little snow, but recorded sharp drops in temperature.

A FRIENDLY CONVERSATION—"You know," Manton continued, "the affair at Newport hurt me terribly." Rosalind was soothed. "Please let's forget all about that horrible evening," she said. As Manton thanked her, Rosalind was distracted by a knock on her door. "Hold the wire, please," she asked.

A GIFT FOR ROSALIND—In the hallway stood a messenger. He handed Rosalind a package. She apologized to Manton for the delay. "A mysterious package has just arrived," she explained. "Have you opened it?" Manton queried. "I'll wait on the telephone while you do so." Rosalind gave a scream of delight as she lifted the lid. Agleam against its white satin background, nestled a diamond engagement ring! Her thoughts flashed back to Roger and she felt a pang. No, it was not he who had sent the ring. Wistfully she wished that it had been he. But now it was too late.

MANTON SURPRISES ROSALIND—Manton waited patiently on the other end of the wire. Rosalind's voice came to him vibrant with excitement. "It's a beautiful ring," she cried delightfully. "Do you like it, my dear?" Manton asked. "I thought you would." He heard Rosalind's gasp on the telephone. "Oh, then it's from you! B-But I really cannot accept such an expensive gift!" Manton hesitated a moment; then he said, "You see, dear, it's our engagement ring! I love you and want to wed you."

FORCED TO A DECISION—An uncertain silence met his proposal. Rosalind's voice came back. "Why, I don't know what to say!" "Don't say anything," Manton urged. "Come down to the office and we'll talk it over." Rosalind dazedly confronted herself in the mirror.

NEW MODEL TROLLEY HAS MORE SPEED, LESS NOISE

Springfield, April 14 (A.P.).—Wide interest in street railway circles centred today in the first road tests of an experimental car which embodies radical departures in street railway practice, the results of two years' study by operating officials of the Springfield Street Railway Company.

The car, constructed here, is designed to meet requirements of greater lightness and speed and less noise than in other cars.

It made its first trip with a party of company and city officials and representatives of railway associations. Extensive use of duralumin and new fundamental design have made a saving of 27 per cent, in weight. Enclosed worm drive from four high-speed motors and internal expanding brakes reduce noise and vibration. The influence of the automobile is seen in sloping windshield, electrical windshield wiper and sloping sunshade. The interior clearance of seven feet makes possible an overall height of ten feet two inches. The car seats forty-five passengers.

All switches are mounted flush on panels. Remote control motors, brakes and doors is employed, with a master controller, operated in a vertical plane.

LITTLE GLOBE-TROTTER ARRIVES IN CHICAGO

Chicago, April 14 (A.P.).—Clutching in a tiny hand a small brown satchel, Andreas Tachida, a globe trotter at the age of five, has reached the end of his unescorted journey from Austria.

Andreas was met at the railroad station by his mother, Mrs. Amelia Goldstein, who whisked him to the home, where he saw for the first time his half-brothers, George, 3, and Henry 2.

FIRE IS NOT SO MUCH, BUT LOOK WHAT'S MISSING

A fire in Walnut avenue, Roxbury, was hardly enough to warrant excitement, but police received complaint today that a $135 diamond ring, $3 in money, a pair of men's shoes, a lady's watch, a Swiss watch, four silk scarfs and a bottle of "Oasis" perfume could not be found after the blaze.

Mrs. Effie Council reported the ring, money and shoes missing.

ASKS FOR 'BIT OF FRENCH SOIL'

those veterans that's going over to France this year to send me over from there just a little bit of soil, just a little bit of the sod from the ground where the American soldiers were buried, that's where they called the American Burying Ground.

GAVE ALL IN WAR.

"I do hope I will be able to see some Boston soldier that will do that for me.

"If I was worth a million, I would pay a hundred thousand for just enough of that soil to raise some flowers on in memory of my son, but as I am only a poor mother I could only thank anybody for that favor.

"A moving picture I saw last night surely should awaken some of those people that will stand up and say on platforms in halls and even in schoolhouses that Americans didn't have no hard fighting to do when they went into the World War.

"Now this is a long letter but it's from one boy's mother that gave his all in that fight.

"I am in sympathy with the Vets."

Trips Over Pail and Dies When He Falls on Revolving Saw

Barre, Vt., April 14 (A.P.).—George A. Crane, 49, was almost instantly killed when he fell on a revolving saw, after stumbling over a pail, at his mill 13 miles from this city.

A boy nine years old was the only witness of the accident and he ran to tell his mother, who went two miles to the nearest telephone to call a doctor.

The doctor said the man died very soon after falling on the saw, the saw penetrating his back and head.

POLICE SEEK DURANT'S KIN

New York, April 14 (A.P.).—Abandoning a private search of more than two years for her husband, Ward Lederer, brother-in-law of William C. Durant, automobile magnate, Mrs. Victoria Lederer has asked the police to aid in locating him. She asserts he is being kept from her by his relatives.

Lederer, 35, left for work in Durant's Wall street office Jan. 27, 1925, Mrs. Lederer said, and she has not seen him since. The Lederers were married seven years ago.

A private search that carried her as far west as California developed only the clue that he had been in Albuquerque, N. M., last December, she said.

2 Fliers Up 51 Hours; Smash All Records

assigned to duty there. At noon the crowd suddenly fell silent as it was realized that a landing must be made very shortly because the supply of gasoline was known to be running low.

TANK IS DRY.

At 12:20 only ten gallons were left in the plane's tank and up to that time close to 7 gallons an hour has been used in the flight.

The last 10 gallons lasted for two hours and 13 minutes, and observers on the field felt sure that the fliers had remained in the air until the tank was absolutely dry.

As the plane soared surged through the ropes and in the path of the plane as it taxied toward a landing. It was in the field's place, was forced to shut off his motor within a few feet of the spot at which it landed.

The plane was immediately surrounded by the thousands of persons who saw the landing and as Chamberlin and Acosta shoved their heads from the cabin they were seized and drawn out by the crowd and carried about the field on the shoulders of the people close enough to capture them.

LITERALLY MOBBED.

Chamberlin, frail, blond and apparently very tired, was drawn out first, but was followed a few seconds later by Acosta, also in the hands of the cheering mob, which threw all restraint to the wind.

Both aviators were smiling happily as they faced a greater danger from injury at the hands of their friends than that to which they had been exposed in the air.

WIVES GREET THEM.

Among the first to reach the fliers were the aviators' wives, who ran along with the throng as their husbands were carried about on the shoulders of the enthusiastic spectators.

As soon as the fliers could be extricated from their admirers they entered a limousine with their wives and drove away, their tired faces wreathed in smiles as they waved from the windows.

The little flivver in which Mrs. Chamberlin had driven to the field was left behind.

When she arrived she expressed the opinion that after the long trip in the air her husband might not care for the jolting ride home with her in the small car.

The former world record was established by the French fliers Doughin and Landry at Etamps, France, in August, 1925. It was the third record shattered by the weary aviators since they started on their endurance flight over Long Island at 9:30:40 a. m., Tuesday.

SET NEW RECORD MARK.

A sleepy group of aviation authorities and newspapermen, numbering about 100, were the only persons on hand as the powerful Wright-Bellanca monoplane streaked its way to the new record and vanished in the gray horizon of early day, droning off the hours before 11:30:40 o'clock this morning, the expiration of the 50-hour period. The day was clear and the plane was flying at an altitude of about 1,500 feet.

The flight, in addition to an attempt to set a new world's endurance record, was in the nature of a test prior to a proposed non-stop New York-to-Paris flight in comp. for the $25,000 prize offered by Raymond Orteig.

Announcement of the new world record was made by Carl S. Schory, secretary of the National Aeronautical Association, who was the official observer at the flight.

DROP NOTES TO EARTH.

Two previous records had been smashed by the fliers. One was the American continuous flying record of 36 hours, 4 minutes and 24 seconds, established by Oakley Kelly and John A. MacReady four years ago.

The duration flight record of a plane refueled in the air was broken at 10:45 o'clock last night as the aviators passed the mark held by Lieutenants Smith and Richter, army airmen, who stayed aloft 37 hours 15 minutes and 14 seconds.

A supply of 285 gallons of gasoline was carried at the start of the trip. A motor that hummed perfectly and a plane that responded gracefully to every move from controls left only the dwindling fuel supply as the remaining obstacle to completion of the 50-hour goal, barring unforeseen difficulty.

The aviators in notes dropped to the ground said they were confident the gasoline would hold out until the 50-hour period had been reached.

CAT NAPS IN AIR.

The only rest the aviators enjoyed since they ascended on their flight were short naps on a mattress in the enclosed cabin of the plane. Chocolate bars, coffee, soup sandwiches and water was their only food. This was taken as they alternated at the controls.

The plane they used won the Detroit trophy at the national air races at Philadelphia last Fall.

Guiseppe Bellanca, its designer, is president of the Columbia Aircraft Corporation, of which Charles A. Levine is the financial backer. Bellanca started his aeronautical career while a student at the Institute of Milan in 1908, when he and two associates built a two-seater Pusher biplane which Bellanca flew.

The wife of one of the fliers, Mrs. Wilda Chamberlin, who has been maintaining practically a continuous vigil, was at the field today watching the plane.

Wife Wants to Give Record Flier Ride Home in Flivver

Mineola, N. Y., April 14 (A.P.).—A small, blue-eyed red-haired woman jumped in glee at Mitchel Field today as Bert Acosta and Clarence D. Chamberlin's big plane created a new endurance record. She was Wilda Chamberlin of Hasbrouck Heights, N. J., wife of Chamberlin.

"Oh, I am so excited and happy," she said. "Of course, I was nervous at times, but I didn't worry a bit, because I knew they would do it."

She drove to the field in her little car. "If Clarence isn't too tired, I am going to drive him back to our home in my flivver," she said. "But maybe he will be afraid of being bounced too much after riding so smoothly in the air, and won't want to go."

fractured skull, is on the danger list at the hospital.

Only the timely interference of Hersey's father, Charles Hersey, 82 years old, and a Civil War veteran, who leaped from his bed at the shrill scream of his daughter-in-law, raced downstairs and seized his maddened son from behind, saved the wife from probably death as she fought out of the corner into which he had maneuvered her.

According to Mrs. Hersey, her father-in-law and the police, the younger Hersey has been suffering from mental nervousness for some time, but had been thought to be improving.

Police said also that at one time he had been a patient at the Psychopathic Hospital.

Hersey himself was so dazed and his speech was so incoherent at the hospital that neither police nor hospital authorities could get a statement from him.

But Mrs. Hersey said that she was waked from a sound sleep by a crushing blow and was horrified, on opening her eye and sitting up in bed, to see her husband standing over her, with eyes glaring and with a hammer in his hand.

FATHER-IN-LAW SAVED HER.

Then, screaming, she leaped out of bed as her husband lunged with the hammer.

A desperate chase ensued, ending with the arrival of the elderly father of Hersey and his battling with his son and finally overpowering the younger man.

Then the husband broke away again, raced for the staircase, tripped, rolled down the stairs and dove into the hall clothes-stand, cutting himself badly.

Police of the Field's Corner station were called, Patrolman Whidden, McDonough and Murdock responding. Dr. William Barnes of No. 432 Columbia road was also summoned, and after giving first aid he ordered man Hersey and wife to the City Hospital.

in French street had been burned to the ground while the fire fighters were busy at another point in the mile-long stretch of fire-swept ground. Volunteers manning tractors in an effort to check the fire by plowing the ground in its path.

A long line of homes in French and High streets was being protected by every available volunteer fire fighters in the district, while the fire raging in the woods almost at their back doors momentarily crept closer.

A heavy pall of smoke laden with flying sparks and embers hung over Hingham and surrounding towns as the fire fighters tried to beat back the flames. The entire section is heavily wooded and more than twenty acres had been burned over in less than an hour.

The fire started in woods lining French street, South Hingham.

CARROLL STILL UNCONSCIOUS

unable to locate the cause for the collapse, he said.

James Carroll, the producer's brother, also said that there had been a favorable turn. He described the collapse as due to mental strain.

Mrs. Marcelle Carroll, the producer's wife, and Mrs. Alice C. Snyder, his sister, are expected to arrive here this afternoon from New York.

Dr. Bates said the coma had not been caused by any disease of the type usually producing unconsciousness, and that the exact cause of the illness had not been ascertained. He added that it might have been brought on by nervous exhaustion, as this had been known to produce a condition similar to Carroll's.

"The patient is improving," Dr. McGehee said. "My opinion is accord with that of the local physician."

James Carroll, who was accompanying his brother on the trip, remained at the bedside during the night. Mrs. Carroll and the producer's sister advised Marshal Hecht, who has Carroll in custody, that they were on their way to Greenville from New York.

HEART ACTION GOOD.

Carroll fell into a coma as the train which was carrying him to the Federal prison entered western South Carolina, and when removed to a hospital virtually was unable to move a muscle. From the first his heart action has remained good and this encouraged his physicians. Nevertheless at one time yesterday they regarded his condition as serious.

Since Carroll is not known to have complained of ill health before boarding the prison car in New York, the physicians have no knowledge of what caused his collapse on the train.

An examination of the patient's stomach failed to disclose any reason. At the Department of Justice in Washington officials, although refusing to divulge the grounds on which the producer recently sought executive clemency, said he had not contended he was in poor health.

EXECUTE PRIEST IN MEXICO

Mexico City, April 14. (A.P.)—Vicente Lopez, described by the War Department as a Catholic priest calling himself General Manuel Samaniego, has been court-martialed and executed.

A report to the department by General Ubalejos says he was captured after a fight with Federal forces near Tenancingo, about 70 miles southwest of Mexico City, and that when the body was exhibited in Tenancingo his true identity was established.

General Urbalejo, claiming the rebellion in the State of Mexico had been crushed by the Federal troops, also announced the capture and execution of General Manuel Orihuela and Captain Jose Macefonio, who he says headed the revolt movement with Lopez.

60c Metal R. R. Ties Invented to Replace $2.80 Wooden Ones

Schenectady, N. Y., April 13 (A.P.)—The General Electric Company tonight announced successful development of metal railroad ties from used rails.

The metal ties cost 60 cents and the wooden ties $2.80. The scrap value of the metal, however, is $2.50, but this may still be recovered after the metal has been used in a tie. An automatic electric welding process has been developed.

TORNADO DEATH LIST TOTALS 59

Rock Springs, Tex., April 14 (A.P.)—Military rule today placed relief and salvage operations here on an efficient schedule as the casualty list in the tornado that razed this inland plateau town Tuesday night stood at fifty-nine dead and upwards of 170 injured. Four persons are missing.

About thirty of the dead were buried in a hillside cemetery yesterday. Dynamite was used to dig the graves, while volunteer carpenters made caskets when a supply from a nearby town was exhausted.

Soldiers and volunteers made every effort to build shelters for the survivors as only about ten buildings were left on foundations and most of these were badly damaged.

VON MEYER FOR BOARD OF B. & M. STOCKHOLDERS

George Von L. Meyer, ousted member of the Boston & Maine directorate, today declared that stockholders had a right to know who represented them on the board of directors, and that he would advocate the appointment of a stockholders' committee to assist at future elections.

"I have no axe to grind just because I have been dropped from the board," said Mr. Von Meyer. "I am glad to be out. I have represented stockholders for nine years and simply resigned because I refused to be a figurehead."

Von Meyer said that at present stockholders were divested of any opportunity to select their representatives and that the only remedy was concerted action by majority preferred stock owners for voice in the management of the road.

Only 36 stockholders were present at the Tremont Temple meeting, representing 878,450 outstanding shares.

Mr. Meyer resigned following a letter sent him by Homer Loring, chairman of the board, in which Von Meyer was informed it was the purpose to have greater representation of shippers and manufacturers on the board.

27 ESCAPE AS CREEK FLOODS COAL MINE

Henryetta, Okla., April 14 (A.P.).—Twenty-seven miners, trapped in the old Wise or Cato coal mine, near her, today by flood waters of McDonald Creek, escaped death when they sought refuge on a level above the water.

Six of the men had been rescued before noon and it was believed their companions were not in danger.

Communication had been established with the twenty-one men still underground. They were seventy feet beneath the surface at a point three-quarters of a mile northwest of the mine's opening.

The shaft was flooded when the bed of McDonald Creek gave way under the load of flood water. Water in the shaft was reported to have reached a depth of forty-five feet.

CHILDREN FAIL TO KEEP MOTHER FROM JAIL

Doubtless every bootlegger has some reason to advance as to why he should not receive a jail sentence, commented Judge David F. Dillon, in the Superior Criminal Court, East Cambridge, when counsel for Mrs. Rebecca Pitch of Cambridge, convicted of exposing liquor for sale, pleaded for leniency on the ground that the woman has seven children, one of them a cripple.

The court then imposed a sentence of two months in the House of Correction and a fine of $50.

WIFE OF FIERY CARRINGTON GETS DIVORCE

Chicago, April 14 (A.P.).—Mrs. Anna Walsh Snyder Carrington, of New York, grandmother and ex-actress, today was granted a divorce from Colonel Edward C. Carrington on grounds of cruelty. A property settlement agreement was reported to have given Mrs. Carrington $100,000.

The decree was awarded after an agreement had been reached out of court whereby infidelity charges were withdrawn by both the colonel and his pretty 42-year-old wife.

Colonel Carrington accused Mrs. Carrington of improprieties with Campbell Carrington, his brother. She in turn alleged the colonel was indiscreet with Miss Mae LaVine, a manicurist.

With only the allegations of cruelty by Mrs. Carrington and that of desertion by the fiery colonel, who, at different times had caned both his brother, whom he named as co-respondent, and his wife, the trial was resumed with the clonel on the stand.

He denied he ever had been unfaithful to his wife. He admitted he had been often away from her on hunting and fishing trips and had been hard-tempered, but insisted he had not been cruel to her.

George L. Schein, counsel for Mrs. Carrington, in his plea to the court, emphasized an incident when he said the colonel had bit his wife's thumb when he tried to take a letter from her and also of the occasion when he struck her with his cane.

2 FROM HUB ADMITTED TO NATIONAL ACADEMY

New York, April 14 (A.P.).—The election of thirteen associate members of the National Academy of Design was announced today by President Cass Gilbert. Among them are Charles Hopkinson and Mary Danforth Page of Boston.

Plot in Lithuania

London, April 14 (A.P.).—The Lithuanian Parliament has been dissolved following the discovery of a plot against President Smetona, among the Populist and Social Democratic parties to overthrow the government.

CANADA VOTES $500,000 FOR LEGATION IN U. S.

Ottawa, Ont., April 14 (A.P.).—Appropriation of $500,000 to purchase a building in Washington to house the Canadian legation was voted by the House of Commons early today. Efforts of Hugh Guthrie, Conservative leader, to reduce the appropriation to $25,000 failed by a vote of 97 to 64.

Mr. Guthrie questioned why Canada should purchase an embassy at Washington when, he said reports indicated the newly appointed United States representative to Canada would occupy merely office quarters and reside in a private dwelling.

POLICE DEPARTMENT BILL IS TURNED DOWN

A resolve calling for an investigation by the State Department of Public Safety regarding the advisability of unifying the various police departments of cities and towns throughout the State, or of metropolitan Boston, today received an adverse report by the House committees on ways and means.

The report of the committee next annual session" is signed by Representative Martin M. Lomasney of Boston.

MISS TEAL INSTALLED AS EMERSON REGISTRAR

Miss Louise L. Teal of Chicago was installed as registrar of Emerson College today with exercises, attended by student body, faculty and friends, in Huntington Chambers Hall at the college.

President Henry Lawrence Southwick installed Miss Teal in office and gave her welcome. He paid tribute to Professor Charles Winslow Ridder, registrar for more than a quarter of a century, whom Miss Teal succeeds.

A Tale of Two Cities — Marked for Death — By Charles Dickens

Charles Darnay returned to England and married Lucie. Two years passed. Sydney Carton, also in love with Lucie, but concealing it because he felt unworthy of her, was a welcome guest at the Darnay home. He was a favorite with Lucie's little daughter and he returned her affection.

Meanwhile, the murderer of Darnay's uncle, the Marquis St. Evremonde, was executed. Because of this Madame Defarge knitted the name of St. Evremonde into her mysterious list, which contained the names of all who were marked for vengeance by the secret society of revolutionists.

The reign of terror broke, the fury mobs stormed the Bastille. There Defarge found the hidden manuscript left by Dr. Manette in his cell, which called for vengeance on all the kin of St. Evremonde. Defarge carried off the manuscript and prepared to use it when the time was right.

Charles Darnay, hearing that an old family servitor of his uncle, the Marquis, was imprisoned, hurried to Paris to aid him. He was recognized as a member of the hated St. Evremonde family and thrown into jail himself by the angry revolutionists.

WOMAN BANDIT AND GRANDMA FIGHT POLICE

Chicago, April 14 (A.P.)—Half a hundred policemen, heavily armed, were held at bay nearly two hours before they captured a young woman gun robber, an Amazonian grandmother and three men and recovered $7,000 in jewelry taken in a store holdup a short time before.

Firemen finally had to be called to bring the girl from her home with tear gas bombs. Wearing masks the firemen found her nearly unconscious, slumped into a basement hole to which she had staggered for air.

At a hospital the young woman said she was Mrs. Mary Walters, 23. The men arrested with her were Carl Ness, 25, and Clarence Ewanson, 24, of Chicago, and Joseph Mashinski, 37, of Los Angeles. Ness' mother, Mrs. Anna Ness, 80 years old, also was arrested.

The Walters woman—who police believe is Helen Conklin, alias Helen Burke, alias Helen Santelee—held the men in the jewelry store robbery, guarding the proprietor with a small automatic while her companions looted the trays.

She covered the retreat of the robbers and then backed out of the store, but left her handbag containing her address on the counter. Thus the police found her shortly after the robber. A dog had to be shot before they could enter.

GONZE—A very bad man to do business with. A thief. A user of Borax.

SEE THIS ADVERTISEMENT!
Yes! It is an OSGOOD furniture advertisement.

WHAT MAKES IT GOOD?
It is SO easy to read and understand.

IS THAT ALL?
No. the pictures look real.

DO NOT THE PICTURES IN ALL ADS LOOK REAL?
No; some of them are greatly EX-AGG-ER-ATED.

WHAT DO YOU THINK, WHEN YOU SEE SUCH PICTURES?
I think somebody is trying to FOOL me.

THEN HOW DO YOU FEEL?
I feel AFRAID, that's why I rather read OSGOOD'S ads.

WHAT DO YOU FIND TO READ ABOUT?
About the pictures; THEY show me what the things are, and the printing tells how they are made and what they cost.

DO THEY COST MUCH?
Not at OSGOOD'S. OSGOOD'S prices are ALWAYS low.

IT MUST TAKE HEAPS OF MONEY, THOUGH!
NO, because they let you pay as you earn the money.

DOESN'T THAT COST MORE?
No, because you can find everything advertised, at the store, with the same prices marked in plain figures.

DO NOT ALL STORES DO THE SAME?
No; many of them HIDE the things they advertise, and try to sell you something else.

WHAT KIND OF FURNITURE STORES DO THAT?
My father calls them Borax houses.

DON'T THEY MARK THEIR PRICES PLAINLY?
No; lots of them use funny marks that only the boss can read.

WHY DO THEY DO THAT?
Must be to fool somebody. That's what makes me afraid.

HOW DO YOU KNOW OSGOOD'S STORE IS SO NICE?
My Grandma bought there before Daddy was born, and SHE told me.

WHAT ELSE DID SHE TELL YOU?
She told me that Osgood's has been OSGOOD'S ever since 1874.

WHAT DOES THAT MEAN?
It means they are proud of their own good name, and would use none other.

DON'T ALL STORES USE THEIR OWN NAME?
Not many of them. They BUY names from people who need the money.

WHY DO THEY DO THAT?
To make us think they are who they are not. It takes too long a time to MAKE a good name.

MY! YOU FRIGHTEN ME! WHAT IS ONE TO DO?
Do what Granny says.

AND WHAT DOES SHE SAY?
She says "WHEN IN DOUBT BUY OF OSGOOD."

17 DIE, 105 HURT BY QUAKES IN SO. AMERICA

Santiago, Chile, April 14 (A.P.).—Seven persons were killed and fifty-nine injured when an earthquake shook the capital today.

Most of the casualties were in the residential sections, where it was reported several houses had collapsed. In the business district the streets were littered with bricks and debris.

Only a few persons were in the streets and they scurried to open spaces for refuge. The population in general rushed from their houses, mostly in night attire.

Within a few minutes all was chaos. Numerous fire alarms were turned in and the engines were kept busy rushing to various parts of the city.

Telephone and telegraph service was interrupted with all points, except Los Andes and Concepcion which reported that while they felt the shock no severe damage was done.

The quake was also felt at Valparaiso, about 60 miles northwest of here.

Buenos Aires, April 14 (A.P.).—Ten persons are reported to have been killed in this morning's earthquakes at Mendoza, Argentina, in the foothills of the Andes, and more than 100 miles northeast of Santiago, Chile. About fifty were injured and considerable damage occured.

Town Water Supply Just Saved From Burning Up

Farmington, N. H., April 14 (A.P.).—The town water supply was saved in the nick of time today when the combined forces of Rochester and Farmington beat back a forest fire as it licked about the spring house and pumping station.

The fire started in a stable owned by Bruce Demerritt and spread rapidly, burning the house and outbuildings and running through the dry grass to the woods burned an area nearly a mile square.

Damage to the outside of the pumping station was estimated at $600, but service was not disrupted.

SHARP CHINESE REPLY TO U. S. REPORTED

Canton, April 14 (A.P.).—Foreigners and Chinese are evacuating the city in larger numbers, fearing a clash momentarily between the Reds and anti-Reds.

Washington, April 14 (A.P.).—The muddled military and political situation in China has turned Washington to speculating as to what is to be expected in connection with the demands upon the Cantonese nationalist leaders for reparations as a result of the Nanking attacks on foreigners.

While the forces of General Chiang Kai-Shek are busy in Shanghai routing Communistic labor groups, his military enemies the Northern Chinese troops, are credited with victories north of Nanking, and the political scene is completely out of sympathy with him.

Eugene Chen, Foreign Minister of the Hankow Nationalist regime, dominated by the radical element, is reported in dispatches from Hankow as determined to reply sharply to the United States and Great Britain, whose ships opened fire at Nanking top rotect their nationals.

The other powers, it is said, are to receive more conciliatory messages. Chiang is said in Shanghai dispatches to be not ready to antagonize the powers.

There has been no indication as to what the American government may do in the event of unsatisfactory replies to its demands.

President Coolidge has indicated that he expects a compliance, and that is as far as any official has been willing to go in response to queries.

Japan to Double Its Army in Manchuria

Tokio, April 14 (A.P.).—The Japanese garrison in Manchuria will be doubled for the time being. The Fourteenth Division departed today for Manchuria to relieve the Tenth Division, whose term of service there has expired, but in view of the situation in China, the Tenth Division will remain temporarily.

Hankow, April 1 (A.P.).—Japanese naval authorities were controlling the Japanese concession here today with a strong contingent of blue-jackets.

Americans in Hankow Warned by Consul

Shanghai China, April 14 (A.P.).—A telegram form Hankow says "the American consul general there (Frank P. Lockhart) served written notice on the American residents that the naval men said they would under no condition attempt to defend any point in Hankow except the consulate in case of trouble.

They stated, according to the telegram, that the consulate could only be defended during actual evacuation, as the naval authorities did not have sufficient forces available. The American Chamber of Commerce there, it is added, has protested, asking full protection of property.

MRS. ALAN C. FRAZER OF ATLANTIC PASSES AWAY

Mrs. Alan C. Frazer, wife of Alan C. Frazer, for years a member of the Boston Evening American editorial staff, died at the Forest Hills Hospital after a short illness. Her funeral will be held from the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Neil J. Wallace, No. 24 Eglseton street, Jamaica Plain, Saturday. Services will be held at the Church of St. Mary of the Angels at 9 o'clock. There will be a requiem high mass Monday at 8 a. m.

Besides her husband, Mrs. Fraser leaves a baby girl two weeks old. Two brothers and a sister also survive. She attended Leo XIII. parochial school, Jamaica Plain, and Roxbury High School. The couple lived in Atlantic.

ARMOURS EXPLAIN GRAIN COMPANY IN LIQUIDATION

Chicago, April 14. (A.P.)—The Armour Grain Company, ordered suspended from the Board of Trade, is in process of liquidation. This was announced by Philip D. Armour and Lester Armour, nephews of J. Ogden Armour in a statement that explained the concern had been liquidating both its property and its grain since July, 1925.

Progress, however, had been hampered, it was stated, by the fact that the Armour Company also had been engaged in liquidating the Grain Marketing Company, the defunct cooperative merger of Armour and other grain concerns.

"PEACH BASKET" WALTZ FOR BOSTONIANS' BALL

Unusual interest is manifested by the younger social set in the Mount Pleasant section of Roxbury in the charity ball of the Bostonians, an organization of young men, to be held in Intercolonial Hall, Dudley street, Monday evening.

A "peach basket" waltz, something new in the dance creation, will be one of many features. A march of nations will be held shortly before midnight under the direction of Amelda Strout and Edna Morrison.

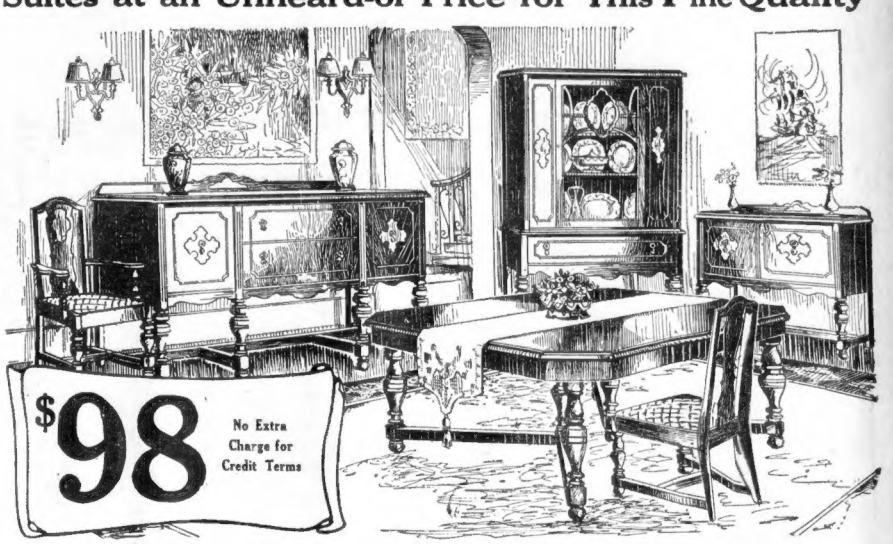
DINING ROOM

Suites at an Unheard-of Price for This Fine Quality

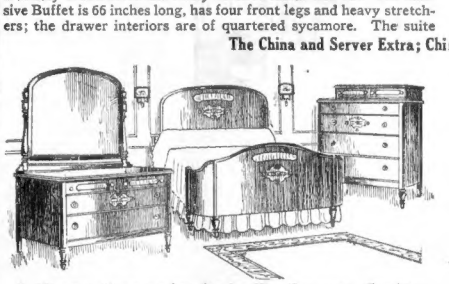


$98 No Extra Charge for Credit Terms

THE BIGGEST VALUE IN DINING ROOM FURNITURE OFFERED IN YEARS

While this is a special, it is only another example of the opportunities offered by this big store to save you money when buying furniture. This is a brand new pattern in beautiful Huguenot Walnut veneers on gumwood, with maple overlay decorations. The Suite is solidly constructed and finely finished inside and out. The massive Buffet is 66 inches long, has four front legs and heavy stretchers; the drawer interiors are of quartered sycamore. The suite consists of oblong extension Table, Buffet, one Host Chair and five Side Chairs to match, with slip seats covered in Jacquard Velour. Note the massive construction, yet the unusually graceful lines and pleasing decorations. And, remember, you can purchase this suite at exactly the same price on our convenient credit terms without extra cost.

The China and Server Extra; China Cabinet $29.50, Server $16.95



A Rare Bargain in a Bedroom Suite

This is an exceptionally well-made suite and should not be judged by the low price. We were fortunate enough to buy a number of these suites at a big discount, and we are passing the savings along to you. The pieces are built of Huguenot walnut veneers on gumwood and attractively decorated with overlay panels. The suite consists of a large 46-inch dresser with 24x28-inch plate mirror, full size bow-end bed and the latest style chest of drawers. The interiors of the cabinet pieces are well finished and have mahogany drawer bottoms.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON SOCIETY EVENTS

Mary Mathews to Wed J. Howard Wing in June

MISS MARY MATHEWS, blonde and blue-eyed and rosy-cheeked, will make a delightfully pretty bride when she and J. Howard Wing exchange their marriage vows in June. Mr. and Mrs. George Mathews, parents of the bride-to-be, are just announcing her engagement, and already the young people, with no liking for a lengthy betrothal, are arranging their marriage day. For them there'll be an early June ceremonial and then a long Summer honeymooning about Marblehead, where life is gay and carefree and the young set is very much in evidence.

MISS MATHEWS CAME OUT two or three years ago—I believe she and the charming Miss Nancy Vose made their bows at the same identical party. And there is a younger sister, Miss Betty Mathews, who has just danced through the debutante program of the past hectic Winter, and during March has been with her mother in Cuba, for rest and recreation and a visit with the son of the family, George Mathews, Jr. Mr. Wing is the son of Mrs. Emily Wing of Brookline and the late Joseph Wing.

YOUTHFUL INTERPRETATIVE DANCERS, PUTTING THEIR elders on their mettle, propose to show off their most accomplished steps on Saturday, April 23, in Brattle Hall. They are Cambridge children learning the grace and abandon of the dance under Miss Dana Sieveling's tutelage. Little Miss Joyce MacNichol, small daughter of Mrs. Frederick MacNichol of the university town is "Peter Pan" in the sprightly company. And some of the other budding coryphees are Alice Parker, Judith Perkins, Desiree Rogers, Patricia Dickinson, Ellen Northrup, Constance Amsden, Betty Atwater and Ruth Bailey.

COHASSET'S REPRESENTATIVE RESIDENT COLONY IS DOING what the Copley Society did so picturesquely and a week from tomorrow gives a "Black and White" party. The town's pet charity (or rather one of them), the Unity Club Alliance benefits thereby and everyone of importance on the South Shore turns out. They do costume parties to the Queen's taste down that way, and the "Black and White" will be a riot of originality, with the Ralph Menards in the lead.

MRS. MENARD IS PLANNER-IN-CHIEF FOR THE DANCE (THE last of a series), and Mesdames Russell Tower, George T. Vedeler, Joseph F. Kendall, Robert Y. Bean, C. Clifford Gammons, Hollis T. Gleason and Frank R. Pegram are assisting. The Menards, by the way, with their interesting young hopefuls, and Colonel Joseph Wilcutt, Mrs.

The Charles Gordon Spragues to Live in Weston on Return from Wedding Tour in Europe

Menard's brother, are but recently back from a tropical jaunt. They followed the sunny pathway of travel to Bermuda and the Caribbean, as so many have done this season, in a circuit that took in every palm-fringed port from New York and back again.

IN AND OUT OF PORT STEAM THE TRANS-ATLANTIC LINERS, always with interesting people aboard bent on interesting journeys to the other side of the world. Mrs. Foster Stearns is now outbound a passenger on the DeGrasse, on the high seas heading toward France, the ever-popular playground, whether it be Spring, Summer, Autumn or Winter. Mrs. George R. R. Rivers of Newbury street also is a passenger on the same steamship.

AFTER THEIR WEDDING JOURNEY "ALL OVER EUROPE" THE young Charles Gordon Spragues are established at their lovely home out in Weston. Mr. Sprague is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Phineas S. Sprague of Boston and Prouts Neck, Me., and Mrs. Sprague was Marjorie Morton, the bride-daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Carpenter Morton, at whose home the wedding was prettily celebrated on New Year's Day.

FULLER TO TAKE BRIEF VACATION

Starting tomorrow, Governor Fuller will take a short vacation, it was announced today at the State House, in the course of which he will visit Albany, N. Y.

The Governor declined today to comment on the Sacco-Vanzetti case or to discuss the "El" control bill which is pending before the Legislature.

Secretary to the Governor, Herman A. MacDonald, who went over to New York to confer with former Secretary of State Charles E. Hughes on the "El" problems, was busy back at his desk on Beacon Hill.

FUND TO AID WHITE COUPLES BUY HOMES

Newark, N. J., April 14 (A.P.)—White, married citizens, who are unable to make the first payment on homes, will be able to borrow money from a fund created by Frank E. Creamer, former vice-president of the North End Trust Company who died on April 1.

Rules of Movie

THE Boston American will publish twenty-four scenes (one a day) from different motion pictures. The face or head of one of the players in the picture will be missing. Fill in the coupon under the picture with the names of the missing player and of the picture.

Awards will be made to the seven persons who send in complete sets of the twenty-four scenes, naming correctly or most nearly correctly the missing players and the plays.

A contestant must write a short letter, giving the name of his or her favorite moving picture and why. The logic of this letter will be reckoned by the judges.

Employees of this and affiliated newspapers and persons affiliated with the moving picture business are barred from this competition.

The judges shall be named by the Managing Editor of this newspaper. Their decision shall be final.

Contestants may submit as many sets of answers as they wish.

Hold your pictures until the whole twenty-four have been printed. Then mail your answer and your letter to Contest Editor, Boston Evening American, P. O. Box 110, Boston, Mass. All sets must be in the office of the Contest Editor before midnight, April 21. No sets will be returned.

FOLEY REFUSES TO BE BOOK PRESS AGENT

Issuing a warning that books of improper nature will be sold in Boston under the penalty of the law, Dist. Atty. William J. Foley stepped out of the book war arena today refusing longer to have his office used as a censorship bureau.

Superintendent of Police Michael H. Crowley will observe the sale of certain books, but the district attorney's office refuses to censor, according to Foley, "because we will not be party to the publicity stunt methods of selling certain books to the public."

It was said today at the district attorney's office that the excitement of the past few days over a number of books had all the appearance of being induced by a cunningly planned publicity campaign. The ban on certain books was expected to increase their sale by many thousands of copies.

BELASCO PLEADS GRIEF IN $1,667 SUIT FOR RENT

New York, April 14.—Memories of a happy married life of 47 years have caused David Belasco intense agony whenever he revisited the apartment at the Marie Antoinette which he and Mrs. Belasco occupied for 20 years prior to her death last year.

That is his defense in a suit by the hotel for $1,667 rent under a lease.

U. S. LEGATION MAY REMAIN AT PEKING

By JAMES T. WILLIAMS, JR.
Editor of Universal Service

Washington, April 14.—Whether the American Legation will be maintained at Peking under the protection of American arms, withdrawn to Tientsin, or shut down altogether and sealed with the great seal of the United States until China is herself again, is still an open question at Washington.

Plenty of time will be taken by the government to find the answer. There are many considerations to be weighed. It is a grave question and a engaging the most earnest attention of the home government.

Not assurance was given that the departure of Mrs. MacMurray, wife of the American Minister, and their children for the United States, does not mean that the government has yet decided to withdraw the Minister to Tientsin or to cut off relations altogether with China.

KEEP LINE OPEN.

Under existing treaties with China, the United States and the other foreign powers have the right to protect the Peking-Tientsin Railway, and keep open at all times a safe line of communication between the foreign legations at the Chinese capital and the sea. These treaties were made after the Boxer uprising in 1900, when for a time a relief expedition had to be sent by the powers to rescue their Nationals besieged in the British compound at Peking.

That they might not be again in this predicament, the powers protected by treaty the Peking-Tientsin Railroad. They have troops at Tientsin for this purpose—5,000 Americans of the 15th Infantry, in command of Brigadier General Gaither are contributing America's share in the discharge of this responsibility.

A decision to keep the American legation at Peking open would mean the reinforcement by many thousands of the railway guard now maintained at Tientsin for that purpose. It is not certain how many American troops would be necessary for this purpose.

The number would depend upon the number sent by the other powers, between twenty-five and fifty thousand Americans, however, in addition to the 500 legationmen now at Tientsin and the 500 marines at Peking, would probably be sufficient to discharge America's share of this responsibility.

More and more the powers are awaiting Washington concerning developments in China. It may turn out that upon the Washington government will devolve the responsibility of making the final decision regarding what is to be done with the foreign legations at Peking.

True to his custom, President Coolidge is availing himself of adjutant advice and counsel on all aspects of the Chinese situation.

PREPARE TO RESPOND.

Within the last few days Charles Evans Hughes of New York, Mr. Kellogg's predecessor as Secretary of State, and Elihu Storey of Chicago, who represented the United States at the conferences on Chinese tariffs and extra territoriality, have been most helpful, and they have made no secret in Washington of the fact that they heartily endorse as wise and prudent under the circumstances the course which the administration is steering in China.

But the War and Navy departments, as is their duty under the circumstances, are making the necessary preparations to assure prompt the call of the President in case his decision is to keep the American flag flying at Peking, and safeguard the American Legation from the attacks which were made upon the American Consulate at Nanking.

Any rumor reaching the country regarding plans to send American troops to China does not mean that there is any intention on the part of Washington to invade China or to protect Americans in the interior.

The only purpose of any American troops going to China is to assure the safety of the American Legation at Peking.

what thousands of doctors know!

If a quick, efficient tonic is needed, in thousands of cases the doctor at once prescribes Gude's Pepto-Mangan. But do you realize what a doctor insists on knowing before he will prescribe this or that medicine? He asks for ingredients—he recognizes the exceptional value of the iron and manganese in the ideal form found in Gude's Pepto-Mangan. Then he asks for proof—scientific proof. The tonic power of Gude's has been proved by hundreds of careful scientific tests. Finally the doctor keeps a careful record of results in his own practice.

When you realize this extreme care, the fact that Gude's Pepto-Mangan has been prescribed by thousands of doctors for over 34 years means that there can be no more efficient and powerful tonic. Your druggist has it in both liquid and tablet form.

What Doctors Say!
"Have used Gude's Pepto-Mangan for many years and find it excellent."

PROF. FRANKFURTER REVIEWS ACTIONS IN DETAIL

By FELIX FRANKFURTER

CHAPTER VI.

By "consciousness of guilt" Judge Thayer meant that the conduct of Sacco and Vanzetti after April 15 was the conduct of murderers. This inference of guilt was drawn from their behavior on the night of May 5, before and after arrest, and also from their possession of firearms.

It is vital to keep in mind the exact data on what, according to Judge Thayer these two men are to be sentenced to death. There was no claim whatever at the trial, and none has ever been suggested by counsel, that Sacco and Vanzetti had any prior experience in holdups or any previous association with bandits; no claim that the stolen money or dollars taken from the victims ever found its way into their pockets; no claim that their financial condition, or that of Sacco's family was in any way changed after April 15; no claim that after the murder either Sacco or Vanzetti changed his manner of living or employment.

Neither of these men had ever been accused of crime before their arrest. Nor, during the three weeks between the murder and their arrest, did they behave like men who were concealing the crime of murder. They did not go into hiding; they did not abscond with the spoils; they did not live under assumed names.

DIDN'T TAKE CAR

They pursued openly their callings, within a few miles of the town where they were supposed to have committed murders in broad daylight; and when arrested Sacco was found to have in his pocket an announcement of a forthcoming meeting at which Vanzetti was to speak. Was this the behavior of men eluding identification?

What, then, was the evidence against them?

Sacco and Vanzetti, as we have seen, were two of four Italians who called for Boda's car at Johnson's garage on the evening of May 5. It will be remembered that in pursuance of a prearranged plan, Mrs. Johnson, under pretext of having to fetch some milk, went to a neighbor's house to telephone the police.

Mrs. Johnson testified that the two defendants followed her to the house on the opposite side of the street and when, after telephoning, she reappeared they followed her back. Shortly after the men, having been advised by Mr. Johnson not to run the car without the current lamps, left the garage. This was testimony on the strength of which Judge Thayer put the following question to the jury:—

Did the defendants, in company with Orciani and Boda, leave the Johnson house because the automobile had no 1920 number plates on it, because they were curious of or became suspicious of what Mrs Johnson did in the Bartlett house?

If they left because they had no 1920 number plates on the automobile, then you may say there was no consciousness of guilt in consequence of their sudden departure, but if they left because they were consciously guilty of what had been done by Mrs. Johnson in the Bartlett house, then you may say that is evidence tending to prove consciousness of guilt on their part.

Following their departure from the Johnson house, Sacco and Vanzetti were arrested by a policeman who boarded their street car as it was coming into Brockton. Three policemen testified as to their behavior after being taken into custody:—

As to Vanzetti.

He went down through the car and when he got opposite to the seat he stopped and he asked them where they were from. "They said 'Bridgewater.' I said, 'What was you doing in Bridgewater' They said 'We went down to see a friend of mine.' I said, 'Who is your friend?' He said, 'A man by the — they call him "Poppy."' 'Well,' I said, 'I want you, you are under arrest.' Vanzetti was sitting on the inside of the seat toward the window and he went, put his hand in his hip pocket and I says, 'Keep your hands out on your lap, or you will be sorry.'"

The Defendant Vanzetti. You are a liar.

As to Sacco.

I told them when we started that the first false move I would put a bullet in them. On the way up to the station Sacco reached his hand to put under his overcoat. I says to him, "Have you got a gun there?" He says "No." He says, "I ain't got no gun." "Well," I says, "Keep your hands outside of your clothes. If you put your hand in there again, you are going to get into trouble." He says, "I don't want no trouble."

LIED TO POLICE

In statements made to the district attorney and to the chief of police, at the police station after their arrest, both Sacco and Vanzetti lied. By misstatements they tried to conceal their movements on the day of their arrest, the friends they had been to see, the places they had visited. For instance, Vanzetti denied that he knew Boda.

What of this evidence of "consciousness of guilt?" The testimony of the police that Sacco and Vanzetti were about to draw pistols was emphatically denied by them. These denials, it was urged, were confirmed by the inherent probabilities of the situation.

Did Sacco and Vanzetti upon arrest reveal the qualities of the perpetrators of the Braintree murders? Those crimes were committed by desperadoes—men whose profession it was to take life if necessary and who freely used guns to hold bystanders at bay in order to make their "get-away."

Is there the slightest likeness between the behavior of the Braintree bandits and the behavior of Sacco and Vanzetti, when the two were arrested by one policeman? Would the ready and ruthless gunmen at Braintree so quietly have surrendered themselves into custody on a capital charge of which they knew themselves to be guilty? If Sacco and Vanzetti were the holdup men of Braintree, why did they not draw upon their pursuer's quick and attempt to make their escape by scattering shots?

CARRIED GUNS

But, if not "gunmen" why should Sacco and Vanzetti have carried guns? The possession of firearms in this country has not at all the significance that it would have, say, in England. The extensive carrying of guns by people who are not "gunmen" is a matter of common knowledge.

The widespread advertisement of firearms' indictus that we may not unfairly be described as a gun-carrying people. The practice is unfortunately rife for a variety of reasons. Sacco and Vanzetti had credible reasons, wholly unrelated to professional banditry.

Sacco acquired the habit of carrying a pistol while a night watchman because, as his employer testified, "night watchmen protecting property do have guns." Vanzetti carried a revolver, "because it was a very bad time, and I like to have a revolver for self defense."

The other evidence from which "consciousness of guilt" was drawn like two admitted. Sacco and Vanzetti acknowledged that they behaved in the way described by Mrs Johnson, and freely conceded that when questioned at the police station they told lies.

What was their explanation of this conduct? To exculpate themselves of the crime of murder they had to disclose elaborately their guilt of radicalism. In order to meet the significances which the prosecution attached to the incidents at the Johnson house and those following, it became necessary for the defendants to advertise to the jury their offensive views, and thereby to excite the darkest prejudices of a Norfolk county jury, packed for its reputation for and sitting in judgment upon two men of alien blood and unpopular principles.

Innocent men, it is said, do not lie when picked up by the police. But Sacco and Vanzetti knew they were not innocent of the charges on which they supposed themselves arrested, and about which the police interrogated them.

For when apprehended they were not confronted with the charge of murder; they were not accused of banditry; they were not given the remotest intimation that the murders of Lamson and Beardsell were laid at their door. They were told they were arrested as suspicious characters" and the meaning which that carried to their minds was rendered concrete by the questions that were put to them:—

(As to Vanzetti.

Did you tell, Mr. Katzmann the truth about Poppi and why you—

A—About Pappi, yes, but I don't say that I was there to take the automobile and I don't speak about the literature . . . I don't tell him about the meeting on next Sunday. Yes, I told them. I explained to them the meeting, I did.

THE EXPLAIN

Q—Tell us all you told Fred Stewart, the chief, asked of you?

A—He asked me why we were in Bridgewater, how long I knew Sacco, I am a Italian, I am an agent out of Campanati and he passed me I became in the employment of the United States.

Q—Did either Chief Stewart at the Brockton police station or Mr. Katzmann tell you that you were suspected of robberies and murder? A—No.

Q—Was there any question asked of you or any statement made to you to indicate to you that you were charged with that crime on April 15th? A.—No.

Q—What did you understand, in view of the questions asked of you, what did you understand you were being detained for at the Brockton police station? A—I understand they arrested me for a political matter. . . .

Q. . . . Why did you feel you were being detained for political opinions? A.—Because I was asked if I am a Socialist, if I am an I. W. W., if I am a Communist, if I am a Radical, if I am a Blackhand.

As to Sacco:

Q—What did you think was the time when the crime that you were arrested for had been committed? A—I never think any thing now I explain.

Q—What? A—I am Radical arrest, you know, the way men do in New York is with lots acted so many people there.

Q—What made you think that? A—Because I was not registered, and I was working for the movement for the working class for the working class.

Q—What do you mean with Mr. Stickel, chief of police, that made you think you were being held for Radical activities? A—Well, because the first thing they asked me if I was an anarchist, a communist or socialist.

ly meritorious to be first into the river.

IN ADDITION to being the great Hindu bathtub, the "holy" Ganges River is also a burial place. Corpses are set afloat on it, and it doesn't matter much what disease they died of. Plagues have spread all around the earth, starting on the edge of that "holy" river.

WE KNOW that not the first to bathe in the Ganges River, but the person that never bathes there is the one to congratulate.

But the religious Hindus do not know it. Their ideas are thousands of years old, and that's why the British, with today's ideas, rule 300,000,000 of them so easily.

SACCO-VANZETTI agitation continues. Governor Fuller of Massachusetts says he is in undated with messages requesting clemency for the two condemned men. Next Sunday Boston labor unions will vote on the case and decide about taking any action or making any recommendation to the Governor.

MARY E. WOOLLEY, president, and fifty-one members of the faculty of Mount Holyoke College, petition Governor Fuller to appoint an impartial committee to investigate the case. On the other side the Civitan Club of Boston protests against "attempts to intimidate the Governor."

Twenty-eight new communications received by Governor Fuller include one from twenty three citizens of Cleveland, and another from the Social Problems Club of Columbia University, both asking intervention. A similar appeal comes from Switzerland.

MR. MENCKEN, who writes, is annoyed that Boston should suppress books held by its appointed judges to be immoral or otherwise undesirable. He mentions the suppression of a book by Sinclair Lewis as proof that Boston possesses a "moron kultur."

Sinclair Lewis has written a book which sincere religious people believe to be harmful, because in it the character of a clergyman is made despicable. If those in Boston, with the legal right, decide that they don't want such a book sold, that does not prove them morons.

MANY LAWYERS and their criminal clients will be shocked to hear how one court in Hungary operates. It is an extraordinary court, trying cases of treason and attempted revolution. If it finds the accused guilty it sentences them to death.

Immediately thereafter it changes itself into a "court of mercy" and investigates the desirability of a pardon. If there is no pardon, the condemned are executed within two hours.

"There is service," as the automobile salesman would express it. Here, if he has money to hire lawyers, the criminal can postpone unpleasant consequences a year or two at least. Both systems are wrong.

UNFORTUNATE French investors own billions of Russian bonds now worthless. Russia needs money, and says to France: "Lend me some more, and I will pay your bonds from my re-established industries and agriculture."

France says: "All right, but you must stop your Bolshevik propaganda in French colonies where ignorant natives can be influenced." We are not afraid of your propaganda here in France. Frenchmen do their own thinking."

IN THE United States we don't feel that we can trust even the home population to do its own thinking. And it is quite true that people here have had less practice than the French in the thinking line. The French Revolution and the German Social Democratic party have taught France and Germany to think. And that, curiously enough, is highly beneficial to the capitalistic prospective form of government. It discourages revolution.

A BROOKLYN doctor leaves $1 to his wife, one cent to his son.

Napoleon Bonaparte would not allow that, and in many places law forbids it, on the ground that a man responsible for bringing a child to this earth is responsible for him after he gets here.

NAPOLEON decreed that sons should respect and obey their parents, and parents, if able, should provide for their children.

And no families are more closely united than French families, some ignorant American opinion to the contrary notwithstanding.

BARES PLOT ON MUSSOLINI

Rome, April 14 (A.P.).—Carlo Quaglia, who, posing as a friend of former Deputy Tito Zaniboni, acted as a police informer for seven months prior to Zaniboni's recent attempt on the life of Premier Mussolini in November, 1925, told the military tribunal today a detailed story of the plot to overthrow fascism.

He maintained that General Luigi Capello, one of the chief men in the plot, had been in touch with Premier Mussolini's secretary for several days, and repeatedly assured him his seat at the meeting "I am not a spy! I am not an agent provocateur!" These protests vainly amused Zaniboni, sitting in the prisoners' cage.

At the mention of a certain woman in Quaglia's testimony, Zaniboni jumped to his feet and declared evenly: "This traitor may say what he wants about my politics, but not about my morals!"

Quaglia described the oath of allegiance taken by the plotters and assured the court he did not participate in it. At this, Zaniboni muttered: "Yes, he did. Long Live Liberty!"

Quaglia maintained he advised the plot party because of his friendship for Zaniboni and partly to save Mussolini.

"I did it," he said, "only after I saw I could not make Zaniboni desist from a mad act. I am 24 years old and have a family and a future to think of."

BUSINESS BLOCK SWEPT BY $2,000,000 BLAZE

Morgantown, W. Va., April 14 (A.P.)—A business block here was wiped out by fire today, causing damage variously estimated at between $1,500,000 and $2,000,000. A theatre, jewelry store, hardware store, music store and other buildings were razed.

Nearly 25 families, occupying apartments above were made homeless. Four firemen were trapped in the basement of a department store, but were rescued. Later they were seriously burned while fighting the blaze from atop the City Hall.

A Startling Serial Story of Love, Terror and the Night Clubs

Jacqueline Kay comes to Boston from Houlton, Me., and obtains an engagement as singer in the Sea Shell, a cabaret. Julius Lupino, the proprietor, to whom Jacqueline is attracted and repelled, takes interest in her. He invites her to join some friends. She meets Tom Ware, who is warned by Lupino to keep "hands off." Ware resents Lupino's attitude. Jacqueline, angry, leaves the table. One of the singers tells her that she can keep Lupino in his place if she is clever. Lupino makes advances to Jacqueline and she threatens to leave. He refuses to allow this and apologizes. He asks her to be friendly and extends his hand.

When Jacqueline leaves the Sea Shell after midnight she finds Lupino waiting to take her home. She refuses his escort. He refuses to allow this. They see Tom Ware waiting in a roadster. Lupino takes Jacqueline's arm. She is accosted by a man whom Lupino knocks down. With a sinking heart, Jacqueline realizes that Lupino has killed the fellow.

Frightened, Jacqueline begs Lupino to leave her. He refuses and tells her that he has done this thing for her. He begs her not to "turn him down in any wrangle with the cops."

Lupino tells Jacqueline that he is aware she doesn't like him. He stirs her sympathy. While talking she becomes aware of a third presence—a policeman!

CHAPTER 10

ABRAHAM GORDON decided not to trust any of his office assistants with the delicate mission of interviewing Jacqueline, who remained stricken and secluded in her rooming house. On the surface, the case looked like an easy acquittal in the adroit hands of Abe Gordon, but sitting alone in his old-fashioned office, in a building not far from the Criminal Court, in Pemberton square, the wily attorney mulled over the menace revealed by the unusually antagonistic attitude of the District Attorney's office.

Month by month it was getting more difficult to get criminals off. Very slowly the reaction to the continued crime wave was coming. Three or four years ago the Lupino case would have been a cinch. What Abraham Gordon principally feared was that Lupino's record, if brought out and revealed on the stand, might jam the works. The witness Hickson—the little man with the battered felt hat—was distinctly antagonistic.

Nor had Lupino's own conduct been particularly helpful; he had killed a man, concealed the body, and had made a partial escape. That, on the face of it, looked like guilt.

Furthermore, the accused had many enemies and it was not inconceivable that witnesses would turn up mysteriously to tell perhaps of a feud or threats. Lupino, beyond all doubt, had a bad record as a bully, personally proud of his physical prowess. These facts, taken altogether, led to the decision to rest the defence on the novel plea of chivalry. The beauty of this scheme was that he could demand an early trial, and before a carefully built-up wave of public opinion could expend itself, a jury would be picked—twelve men, whose minds would be predisposed in favor of the defendant by a campaign of publicity worked up in advance of the trial.

Straightway, Mr. Abraham Gordon had gone to work on this theory.

Jacqueline, very much against her will, came down into the grubby parlor of her rooming house to meet the mysterious gentleman whose card had been brought up by her landlady. The visitor, who arose at her entrance, was by the subtle legalistic aura that clung about him, unmistakably of the bar. His head was bald, with a fringe of iron gray hair, on a sharp beak of a nose, polished, rimless glasses rested, secured by a silk ribbon terminating in a little mechanical reel on his vest.

With something akin to the dignity of the attorney of the old school, Mr. Abraham Gordon bowed to Jacqueline. His call, he told her with suavity, had to do with the unfortunate predicament in which his

U. S. BACKS JAZZY YOUTH

Father Makes Impassioned Plea

FLAMING YOUTH UPHELD

U. S. Acting Surgeon-General Backs the Flappers and Warns Fat Folks

Editor's Note—What of the youth of today—of the jazz age? Is it, as some moralists claim, going to the bow-wows, or is it, as others claim, merely scaling a step in advance of the preceding generation? In an interview, Dr. C. C. Pierce, acting surgeon-general of the United States, states his opinions and comments upon the trend of American life.

By ROBERT S. THORNBURGH
Copyright, 1927, International Features Service, Inc.

Washington, April 14.—Flaming youth got a clean bill of health from the United States Public Health Service today.

So did thinly-garbed flappers and old men who sit in shimmy patee from the front rows of snappy musical revues.

But fat women—and men, too—past the middle age wars warned to "go slow" and eat less, if they would partake much longer of the abundant pleasures of the jazz age of today.

Dr. C. C. Pierce, acting surgeon-general of the United States, summed up the jazz age, casting into the discard key theories which forecast doom of the race because of the wildness of youth. He declined to be frightened by the assertion that every little kiss shortens life by seven minutes.

STRAIN ON NERVES

"Living has been accelerated since the World War and everybody is under a higher nervous tension," Pierce said.

"Theoretically dissipation, dancing and playing cards all night, kissing petting, driving automobiles, listening to voodoo jazz music on the radio and in the theatre, puts a strain on the nervous system.

"We have speeded up the process of the human body—if the heart beats faster, the blood goes faster and there is a tendency to lowered vitality."

However, there's another side of the picture, which more than counteracts all the bad effects of the vice of high power living, according to Pierce.

"Everyone takes better care of his health than 25 years ago," he said. "Better food has resulted in a great disappearance of many communicable diseases.

"The automobile speeds up the heart and causes accidental deaths, but it gets millions out into the air and lengthens their life through better health.

DENIES MORAL COLLAPSE.

"Death, although not preventable, can be postponed. Our normal span of life is lengthening and the people are getting into such hearts as to enjoy life."

Pierce denied the moral breakdown of youth. He insisted that there was just as much petting and kissing among girls and boys twenty-five years ago as today, and that the longer span of life of the present shows that no harm resulted to the race.

"Women are in much better health than yesterday," he said. "Their clothing is sensible. Nothing helped women like the abandonment of the old corset and tight clothing. Sufficient clothing to protect the body from the weather is enough."

Pierce scored overeating, declaring slender people have a better chance of living and enjoying life than the fat ones. Fat women past fifty should be flagellated, he said.

Anti-fat medicines were condemned and light diet and exercise to cut off the surplus flesh recommended in stead.

The much-discussed "high blood pressure" among men is not increasing, in Pierce's opinion. Three meals a day of heavy meat and intoxicating liquors of yesterday caused vastly more high blood pressure than all the chorus girls and short skirts of today, he said.

MA ACCUSES GIRL-WIFE

CHARGED WITH NOT WORKING

Mrs. Margaret Weltz, 16, wife of Herman Weltz, the "gentleman bandit" who is serving his sentence, was haled to court today on charges by her mother that she will not get employment. Her trial was set for Wednesday and she was placed in the House of the Good Shepherd.

BUT LOSES CUSTODY OF GIRL

Mother Retains Privilege to Keep Daughter for Six-Month Periods

A father's impassioned plea for the sole custody of his 12-year-old daughter, the sobbing man saying that the little girl is his "only interest in life,' wailed him nothing in Middlesex Probate Court, and Merton K. Southworth of Everett will continue to have his daughter, Constance, with him for but six months of the year.

Even Judge Leggatt was patently moved by the man's fervent appeal, his voice breaking, and tears running down his cheeks. Southworth asked that the child be given to him for all time reversing a court decree allowing him custody of Constance only for six months in the year.

But Judge Leggatt ruled against him, saying that something radical wrong will have to be proved before he will order a child taken from its mother.

In [illegible] Southworth contended that he had two other children by a previous marriage, while no children of Constance and had nothing else in the world to live for save the child."

Mrs. Southworth said the little girl was afraid of her father and hid under the bed when he came to get her for her term of living with him. Six times has the child been kidnaped by one parent or the

9 FIRE ALARMS IN FRAMINGHAM IN TWO HOURS

Framingham, April 14 (A.P.).—A house was destroyed, 100 acres of timberland burned, two firemen were hurt and a new $12,500 fire engine pumper extensively damaged when fires caused nine alarms to be sounded between 9:45 and 11:45 today.

The first alarm came at 9:45 for a brush fire on Brook street, which endangered the home of P. H. [illegible] ney, causing a general alarm to be sounded. While the firemen were battling the flame another alarm came in from box 352 when the home of Adolph Frehich was destroyed with a loss of $6,000.

The fire got beyond the firemen who were forced to call for help from the farther end of the town where the brush fire was being fought.

While answering this call the pumping engine crashed into and Hosemen Anthony [illegible] Cornelius Ellsworth had [illegible] surgical treatment.

A third fire started on [illegible] street about 10:50 and swept [illegible] the thick forest on Indian Head necessitating the calling [illegible] from Natick. Two more [illegible] were sounded for this blaze [illegible] other alarms for brush fires sounded.

DISABLED SHIP WITH 168 ABOARD TOWED TO PORT

Philadelphia, April 14 (A. P.).—One hundred and sixty-eight passengers from the steamship Mary Weems which drifted helplessly at sea with her fuel pipes failing to work until picked up by the steamer Bristol, entrained for New York today shortly after the vessel was towed to her dock here.

The ship also will leave for New York as soon as the fuel pipes are repaired. When they clogged Captain William B. Brooks flashed an SOS that was responded to by the Bristol, en route to Hampton roads. The disabled ship was towed into Lewes, Del., where supplies of food were obtained. From Lewes the Mary Weems was brought here by two tugs.

SALE OF LEYLAND AND TRANSPORT LINES SEEN

Rumors are rife predicting negotiations for the sale of the Atlantic Transport and Leyland Lines. The arrival of P. A. S. Franklin, president of the International Mercantile Marine Company in London strengthens the rumors.

Officials of the I. M. M. companies say that they have heard nothing of such negotiations and declare that President Franklin's visit is merely one of his regular vacation trips.

Well informed shipping executives knew nothing of the sale of the White Star Line to the Royal Mail Steam Packet Line until the sale was officially announced. It is declared that the sale of the Atlantic Transport and Leyland Lines would be a natural sequence to the sale of the White Star Line.

14 MORE SHIPS FOR ALASKA TOURISTS

Tourists travel to Alaska will break all records this Summer, and the steamship lines operating between Seattle and northern territory are to be increased with fourteen more liners. Tourist travel to Alaska has tripled in the past five years. The Alaska Steamship Company has acquired another steamship which is being outfitted with de luxe accommodations to be in Southwestern Alaska service.

NEW LINER IS DESIGNED FOR ROTTERDAM SERVICE

Completion of plans for the construction of a 30,000-ton passenger liner for the New York-Rotterdam service has been announced by Adrien Gips, director of the Holland American Line.

The new ship is expected to be ready for service in 1929. the company also plans a new 10,000-ton Diesel freighter for its Pacific Coast service. Contracts for their construction have not yet been awarded.

SHOPS CLOSE AS ENGLAND EATS 100,000,000 BUNS

London, April 14 (A P.).—One hundred million hot cross buns will be eaten in England tomorrow, Good Friday, say the master bakers. This constitutes a high record Twenty million buns are being baked for London alone.

RARE SIGHTS ON ALASKA TRIP

A trip to Alaska will unfold many rare sights and create in the mind of the traveler everlasting memories. The trip to Alaska can be made by the steamships of the Canadian National Railway, starting at either Vancouver or Prince Rupert. The trip is made via an inside passage, one of the three great inside passages in the world.

It is advisable to start the trip from Vancouver as it will afford the traveler a full thousand miles of sea and sail, while on the return trip you can debark at Prince Rupert to return East through the famous Canadian Rockies.

The steamships stop at Wrangell, a city founded by Russian traders as a trading post in 1838. Juneau, the next stop, is the site of the Alaska Territorial Museum with its exhaustive collection of Eskimo and Indian curio. While here the traveler can visit the Mendenhall glacier.

Further information on a trip to Alaska can be had by writing to the Hotel, Travel and Resort Bureau maintained by the Boston Evening American at No. 5 Winthrop square.

Canadian Pacific Ship Ends Luckiest World Cruise

The Empress of Scotland returns to New York Tuesday from what is probably the luckiest world cruise recorded in recent [illegible].

On her voyage, which began last December, the Empress of Scotland escaped the Madeira hurricane by twenty hours, missed the Colombo, Ceylon, harbor strike by three days and reached Japan just two days after the earthquake that rocked Kobe on March 7.

Her passengers also made the scheduled visits to Shanghai and Peking.

NEW SEABOARD TRAINS ON RUN

The Seaboard Air Line Railway announces that the Southerner, the fast one night out train between New York and Washington through Jacksonville and Central Florida to both coasts, will be re-established on April 17 with practically the same schedule as the Orange Blossom Special.

Effective the same date, a new train known as the New York Florida Limited, over the same route, serving both coasts of Florida will be placed in service from New York and Washington.

GERMAN LINERS FOR S. A. RUN

Word has just been received at the local office of the North German Lloyd at No. 35 State street, that the North German Lloyd has acquired steamers Teno and Aconcagua from the South American Steamship Company.

A passenger and freight service will be commenced with the Teno on May 7 and the Aconcagua on June 4 from New York via Panama to Peru and Chile.

On these dates the steamships will be taken over by the North German Lloyd and under the German flag and with German crews, will carry out the present sailing list as announced by the South American Steamship Company.

The many friends of the North German Lloyd will be pleased to hear that they can now also enjoy the superb North German Lloyd service and cuisine on their future trips to the west coast of South America.

B. & M. WILL RESUME PORTLAND BUS SERVICE

Announcement has been made by the Boston and Maine Railroad that beginning Friday, April 15, they would resume their motor coach service between Boston and Portland, Me., which was suspended last December for the Winter months. The schedule in effect after April 15 will be one trip a day, each way, leaving Boston and Portland at 1 p. m.

CUTS UP HAM AND, BEHOLD, HE BECOMES AN ARMOUR

Just because a man cuts hot hams for sandwiches in one of Boston's new sandwiches luncheonettes, he doesn't automatically become a member of the famous Armour family of Chicago, Police told Thomas Hope of Revere yesterday.

Dipping into the text of shirts, Hope walked into police headquarters and informed Lieutenant Joseph Keenan, who is on desk, that he was a son of Oscar Armour, noted meat packer. With a dozen thousands of the town, Hope added somebody had removed him of $40 in cash and a three-quarter carat diamond ring.

Since with the arresting officials of the lads, Hope went to the Statler Hotel, where the man said he was registered, but no one by that name was known there. Came more questing, during which Hope said he knew a certain man in Boston. The friend after looking the street Armour soon over, blended him on a sandwich man. He was booked on a charge of drunkenness.

RADIO DIALOG

by WILLIAM RANDS

SCOUTING AROUND in the radio press for reportorial stuff of fascinating writers we unearthed — unearthed is the proper term when we consider the labor and sweat involved — information from our friend Charlie Burton. It seems that at WLIB they used up twelve good radio tubes last year.

Charlie was complaining of the high cost of tubes. In 1925 the number of used tubes had been six. And now for only eighteen cents! Huh. So Charlie was not in luck and we are classes for a little sympathy.

As we pondered the problem, we were aroused by the harsh voice of an announcer demanding to know who in hell had taken his hat to Europe. Beware, here was the whole station.

• • •

Announcers are always, or pretty nearly always soft spoken and very suave. We are some of them it is so exactly that we can picture the president of the old ladies' home wanting to kiss our knees of the

Making a hundred ten separate and distinct appeals over a period of seven months while the station is pleading at a hopeless case for support is a hard sell that sticky, gooey pop on our friend's radio trousers. (Not that we mean like radio they are invisible.)

Then he bellows something into the microphone and far up in the control room our radio jerk the Baking powder went up a few points last night. Not intending to boost it at that time we are sorry but the whole of the Steep is due to raise. It started as We settled the air. We started some and then turned our dial back to the station's voice.

We must have heard that much before, yes, many times before, but just might it thrilled and thrilled. It urged us to do something to get into the swing of his fiery rhythm.

With a good start we just had to remain. The music was good. It knew it was good. Just one of us it had added an extra attraction Sam Riegel. Sam, with his own [illegible], held the center of the loud speaker with his medley. At times we didn't know if it was only Sam or Sam and three others. It has some self-taught trick way of strumming four strings at once so as to produce the effect of four instruments. How he does it we don't know.

At this time we took a few minutes off to find fault with out-of-[illegible] [illegible] WLIB and Krikka were loud enough to permit a desire to listen. Others were very weak and unsatisfactory. Back to WRC we went, and glad we did.

Tiptoeing in so as not to disturb Henry Burr we listened with joy to his rich voice. "Out of the Dusk" and "When the Corn Is Waving" were the only two he sang. For [illegible] were a triple and heart appealing.

Like good showmen the Maxwell directors then changed the program. We must not hear too much of one type of good thing. So we heard Mr. Shilkret's superb orchestra in that arresting number "Hail! Hail!

Foster Edwards Faces Dodgers in Third Game at Wigwam

By NICK FLATLEY

BUSINESS is picking up at the Wigwam. The Braves have hopped onto the victory side of the parade, and should begin to produce some of the fighting baseball that was manufactured down in Florida.

The Tribe looks like a better team than the [illegible] and should [illegible] things [illegible] by [illegible] this first [illegible]. They will have to [illegible] that [illegible] Walter [illegible] two of [illegible] regular [illegible] are new-[illegible] a crew of [illegible] sent quite a [illegible] down, especially [illegible] not [illegible] founded [illegible].

The tall speeder was a bit shaky at the start of the game. He couldn't hit the corners of the plate. So he found himself in several delicate situations. Snappy and sensational support rescued him, and as the game wore on he was pouring that fastball at the batters with fine speed, and great command. He looked like the great pitcher he is, once he found himself.

It is evident from the way McGraw worked on opening day, and Larry performed [illegible] the first [illegible] that the pitchers this year have brought [illegible] with them. Bob Smith had a [illegible] spell, but that was due entirely to nervousness. He had too much desire to win.

RED SOX OUT TO EVEN SERIES WITH SOLONS

Washington, April 14.—Well, at least your Boston Red Sox haven't a tale of defeat to explain today and, with an additional twenty-four hours in which to reflect on their short-comings as revealed in the one game that the weather has permitted them to play this season they feel they will be better able to go on the diamond and give the Griffmen a real argument.

Since faltering in their opening attack, the Red Sox have had a couple of sessions of skull practice with "Ol' Bill" Carrigan as school master, and the venerable leader has pointed out no few items of strategy of which he expects his lads to take full advantage as the season wears on.

WORK UNDER STANDS.

Too, a bit of tossing and bunting was possible beneath the concrete stands as yesterday's drizzle made the grounds untenable, but only enough was done to keep the athletes' muscle limber and their eyes clear.

Observers of Tuesday's game are agreed with Carrigan that Paul Wanninger, the St. Paul recruit, may be a better shortstop than he revealed in his 1927 debut. While not excusing his infielder for the two errors, one of which was quite costly, "Ol' Bill" is of the opinion that nervousness was partly responsible for his erratic play.

Wanninger is proving himself as a hitter before he is qualifying as a shortstop, and Carrigan is hopeful that he will settle down and be as valuable defensively as he is offensively.

The Red Sox, outside of their activity described above, spent a very listless day hanging around the hotel lobby or sneaking off to their rooms for a game of cards or a snooze.

NO MONEY FOR RACES

All amusement is being done "[illegible]" as it were, for the players have yet to draw their first pay envelopes and the bankrupt condition of players at this time of year is a legend in baseball circles.

MUNN IS HURT; ARGONNE A. A. SHOW OFF

Eddie Mack, matchmaker of the club, has lost many nights' sleep trying to keep the show together and finally decided to postpone the show indefinitely.

Kaplan Scored Fall Over Horse

Abe Kaplan, Jewish champion wrestler, won a victory but not on the mat. While winning this victory he also won a dinner for himself and six friends. Abe has been putting in one hour daily at shoeing horses at Combination Park to toughen his muscles.

Quite a few of the boys know that Paul Bowser has a horse out at the park that is more or less of an outlaw.

They bet Abe the dinner for the party that he couldn't shoe the horse alone, the bet being that he was to enter the stall and catch the horse as well as shoe him after he had caught him.

The truth of the matter is that the horse is more or less bluff.

IT WOULD BE NEWS IF A LORD HAD $25,000

Chicago, April 14.—Some unnamed British lord is shy $25,000 and as a result Gene Tunney is unlikely to permit Britishers to look him over.

Manager Billy Gibson says his lordship was supposed to make an advance two weeks ago, and "unless the dough is placed on top of the barrel Tunney will not go on the boat."

Gibson told the promoter to go ahead and dicker for an opponent for Tunney. He said he would take up the proposal with the champion at once, with the possibility that the late Summer or early Fall may see a heavyweight title bout here.

Women Promoters Make Their Bow

By CORINNE RICH
Universal Service Staff Correspondent

Washington, April 14.—Enter the woman sports promoter! She's the last word in feminism and folks call her the well-known "Wow."

Take Hazel Edgar and Rilla Engle.

Hazel and Rilla are Washington newspaper women. [illegible] is dull and gray [illegible] its daily thrills. [illegible] gets pretty drab in news [illegible] of year, and they decided to [illegible] something new.

So what should they think up but a whippet derby [illegible] grand manner—a [illegible] society event, if you please [illegible] enough to pep up [illegible] and blase capital. Now, after a good many weeks of labor [illegible] announced the derby for May 21.

There are to be professional dogs from Canada and from all the American tracks — [illegible] Long Island, the Pacific Coast. There is a long list of patrons and patronesses, a list containing many important names. There will be prizes and loving cups, and goodness knows what else.

Boxes at the American League park have already been [illegible] members of the "upper crust" [illegible] almost enough to defray expenses.

Mrs. James F. Curtis, one of the city's noted hostesses, is sponsor for the derby and will give a loving cup. Mrs. Stanley Rinehart, better known as Mary Roberts Rinehart, the writer, will give another.

And Suzette Dewey, debutante daughter of the Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, is special sponsor for the "debutante handicap" in which only little novice dogs will compete for the prize Miss Dewey is offering.

When Miss Edgar approached Mrs. Rinehart for her patronage, the latter asked her: "What charity is it for?"

"We've been helping you out with your charities and now we want you to help us. This derby is for two indigent newspaper women," Miss Edgar told her.

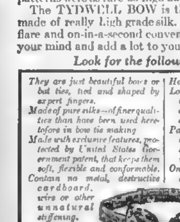
"BECAUSE YOUR APPEARANCE COUNTS"



Different!

UNTIL the advent of TYDWELL BOWS, bow ties of quality silk and in artistic patterns were as rare as high hats in the Garden of Eden.

The TYDWELL BOW is the only one we know of made of really high grade silk. Their natural hand-tied flare and on-in-a-second convenience will take a load off your mind and add a lot to your appearance.

Look for the following features:

They are just beautiful bows or bat ties, tied and shaped by expert fingers.
Made of pure silks—of finer qualities than have been used heretofore in bow tie making.
Made with exclusive features, protected by United States Government patent, that keeps them soft, flexible and conformable.
Contain no metal, destructive cardboard, wire or other unnatural stiffening.
Have no seams to open or fray.
Loops or wings folded into shape (not stitched) leaving the bows open and natural in appearance.
Patent governor slides used—the best type we know—extra strong—easy, smooth sliding, making sizes easy to adjust.
On the special elastic type, silk elastic used exclusively.
On all-material type, neckbands are correct width and wafer thin.

CALDER PROBES ATTACK

La Flamme Knocked Out After Final Stanley Cup Game; Blames Coutu

dictator's room. La Flamme emerged with a painfully swollen face.

Hockey followers today estimated that members of the champion Ottawa club would draw about $1,000 apiece as their share of the players' pool in the playoff series with the Bruins. Each ward figured as approximately $300 to each player.

President Frank Ahern indicated that the Senators had completed the season with a profit, being estimated that they finished anywhere from $2,000 to $3,000 on the right side of the ledger.

La Flamme was knocked unconscious while passing through a group of Boston players on his way to the dressing room after the game and Billy Boll, his associate, was rushed to his aid and was also knocked down a moment or two later.

NAMES COUTU.

La Flamme names Billy Coutu, Boston defenseman as the player who hit him and is understood to have accused Coutu in a statement he has made to President Calder.

Whether or not Coutu was the guilty party, it is certain that one of the visitors is guilty of the assault and as soon as President Calder fixes the blame, drastic punishment is sure to follow.

If Calder attempts to punish any Hub player, owner Adams is expected to make counter charges against La Flamme.

It is known that the Bruins have long been antagonistic toward the official and Jerry seemed to call down his way in his series to inflict penalties on the visitors.

The attack on La Flamme came as a climax to what many experts say was the roughest and dirtiest game of hockey ever played.

With the Senators leading three games to one in the final period and virtually sure of winning and keeping the world's championship and Stanley Cup in Canada, they started out to gain revenge for the wrongs they claim they had suffered at the hands of the Bruins all season.

The Bruins proved able to give as much as they took and in a few minutes the hockey game developed into a battle royal.

WITH BIG OFFENDER.

Hooley Smith, Ottawa forward, started the rough work by smashing his stick across the mouth of Lionel Hitchman, Hub defenseman.

Hitch started after him and Capt. George Boucher of the Senators who was a stiffy bodychecker by trade, for a few moments before, came to Smith's rescue and received a beautiful black eye for his trouble.

LaFlamme sent both Hitch and Boucher off but forgot all about Smith, although he was standing aside the latter when he made his unwarranted attack on the Boston player.

Having succeeded in spilling blood Hooley attempted to repeat his performance as often as possible but failed until a couple of minutes before the close when little Harry Oliver, Bruin mainstay and by best and cleanest player on either team of the series, scored Boston's first and only goal of the game.

The fact that Oliver had scored seemed to rile Hooley and he went out of his way to smash his stick across Harry's face. Oliver dropped in a heap on the ice with a broken nose and Eddie Shore leaped at Smith. LaFlamme broke up the battle and gave each man a major.

Smith wasn't the only dirty player, though. He appeared to be the dirtiest but almost every man on the ice did more than his share of illegal work in the closing minutes except Oliver.

W. G. A. Season Opens Today With Three Matches on Card

By BILL GRIMES

In the first team matches of the Women's Golf Association of Boston, which will be played today, the Central district, winner last season, will meet the Northern district team at the Oakley Country Club, The Country Club will be hosts to Providence at Clyde Park and Brae Burn will play Southern at Wollaston.

The struggle for the W. G. A. team match championship is always a hard fought one and judging from the strength added to each of the six contesting aggregations, the fight for the 1927 title should be the greatest in the history of the organization.

Bill Grimes

Miss Theresa Winsor of the Weston Country Club, is captain of the Central team and she has gathered one of the strongest teams that ever represented that district. Much is expected of the new and young material on the Central team. Miss Olive Buttrick has great possibilities as has Miss Winsor, Miss Brewer and Miss La Bonte, while Mrs. Stanwood was the runner up to Mrs. S. D. Waxman in the W. G. A. of Boston championships at Kernwood last season. Mrs. E. C. Stone is a former W. G. A. champion, and Mrs. W. J. Hainan had the best individual record in team match play in 1926. Mrs. D. A. Baldwin of Concord is an experienced player and has established a fine reputation throughout this section.

The Northern District, will be forced to play without Miss Margaret Curtis of Essex County and Mrs. N. W. Webster of Merrimac Valley. Miss Curtis will be available next week but Mrs. Webster is out for the season, as she has not sufficiently recovered from an operation.

The Central-Northern match will bring together the finalists of the 1926 Women's Golf Association of Boston championships, Mrs. S. D. Waxman of Kernwood and Mrs. F. A. Stanwood of Wollaston. At the last meeting of this pair, Mrs. Waxman was returned a 2 and 1 victor and succeeded Mrs. E. H. Baker, Jr., of Oakley and Scituate as the W. G. A. champion.

The W. G. A. schedule calls for ten matches between today and May 16 and then on May 18 the association championships will start at the Woodland Golf Club.

The lineups are as follows:

AT THE OAKLEY C. C.

Central — Mrs. F. A. Stanwood, Miss Olive Buttrick, Miss Theresa Winsor, Mrs. E. C. Stone, Miss Martha Brewer, Mrs. D. A. Baldwin, Mrs. W. J. Hainan, Miss E. W. Allen, Miss Eleanor La Bonte.

Northern—Mrs. S. D. Waxman, Mrs. D. M. Belcher, Miss Harriet Curtis, Mrs. H. H. Hicks, Miss Virginia Forrest, Mrs. A. McGregor, Mrs. Perley Chase, Mrs. R. W. Hyde, Miss Elinor Sutton.

AT THE COUNTRY CLUB

The Country Club—Mrs. W. C. Quimby, Miss Ruth Batchelder, Miss Edith Stevens, Mrs C. F. Rowley, Mrs. Norman Cabot, Mrs. R. W. Knowles, Mrs M. S. Felton, Mrs. G. A. Lyon, Miss Hilda Williams.

Providence—Miss Margaret Gordon, Mrs. Isobel Harris, Mrs. L. D. Wallick, Miss Virginia Kenworthy, Mrs. J. H. Arthur, Mrs. H. E. Kenworthy, Miss Carpenter, Mrs. Edward Shay, Miss Crandall.

AT THE WOLLASTON G. C.

Brae Burn—Mrs. J. H. Woodin, Mrs. W. A. Webster, Mrs C. E. Deland, Miss Frances Stebbins, Miss Harriet Ellison, Mrs. S. E. Bentley, Mrs. R. W. Roope, Mrs. G. B. Johnson, Mrs. E. T. Sayward.

Southern—Mrs. E. H. Baker, Jr., Miss Joyce Bigelow, Mrs. C. F. Eaton, Jr., Mrs. S. J. Gifford, Miss J. Griffin, Mrs. H. K. Byers, Mrs. L. H. Tobin, Mrs. G. P. Hunter, Mrs. J. T. Leonard.

B. U. PREPARES FOR GAME WITH TECHNOLOGY NINE

The B. U. nine, with one win and one loss to its credit, will be given stiff workouts today and tomorrow in preparation for the game with Tech on Saturday.

The students have not forgotten the beating Tech administered Back Bay college in hockey. After the hockey season, the track teams met and the dual meet ended in a tie. A baseball victory over the Engineers will even matters for the athletic year.

The group that Coach Daw now has working as the best combination of the year. He made the change for the Northeastern game and it was successful. He will use the same team Saturday.

Heard in Golfing Circles

Jesse Crane of the Country Club and his distinguished partner will be missed this season. The former Harvard football coach and international golf star, both of whom have been members of the Country Club for many years, have moved to Brookline. Mr. Crane is considered a scratch player with a slight edge on the Noted United Shoe pair, conversationally.

The New England professional golfers' organization will substitute a four ball best ball tournament for the open medal play event at the Country Club on May 2, as originally scheduled. The professionals will be host and the pairings will be made from scratch. After the 36 hole event, the annual meeting will be held and Eugene F. Wogan of Essex County Club will be re-elected for another year.

MARATHON INVASION STARTS

Runners in April 19 Grind Will Arrive in Pullmans, in Box Cars and on Foot

A small army of Marathon runners is due to invade Boston within the next few days. They will come in Pullmans, in box cars and on foot. Marathon runners are not particular about how they travel as long as they reach their destination.

Bill Kennedy, who won the classic in 1917, first came to Boston under a freight car. Since his victory Bill rides on the plush, but in the good old days the veteran was satisfied to just ride.

Kennedy is a bricklayer by trade. When he reaches a city, he at once gets himself a job laying bricks. Wherever Bill goes Bill works at his trade.

The veteran will arrive Saturday with Whitey Michelson, John Kral and T. Monteverde. All four runners plan to make their headquarters at Marathon Inn, Hopkinton.

Carl Linder, winner of the race in 1919, has sent in his entry for this year's grind. This makes the total to 153. Other late entries are Hamilton Bein of Dorchester, W. Leach of Reading, John Bracken of the Renrack Club of Chelsea, Alexander Holkkila of the U. S. Marine Hospital, Frank Cellini of Quincy and Al Patch of Alston.

Linder is the sixth former winner to enter the race. The others are Edouard Fabre, Clarence DeMar, Johnny Mc[illegible], Frank Zuna and Bill Kennedy.

Among the entry blanks in one signed Johnny [illegible] Connors. Connors also adds that he is the "running clear salesman." This bit of self-advertising will cause several of our leading gate crashers and Annie Oakley hounds to seek places along the course in the hope that "Cigars" will hand out samples as he runs.

The entry list to date numbers 142. While the official closing date was April 12, Kanaly is still receiving entries as they arrive at the B. A. A.

Reducing the golf swing to its simplest terms the action of the right arm is the next essential. In the back swing the right arm does practically nothing. You need not be conscious of it at all. However, the instant it begins taking a part in the back swing you will become conscious of it. In the address the right elbow is pointed downward and in toward your right side, so that it barely touches your side. Then let it stay there.

You have merely to keep this arm from introducing [illegible] in the back-swing action if it gets into play at this period it will probably start a pulling or pushing action against the club. This is to be avoided. The right arm has a tendency to draw itself back in behind the body. See to it that it keeps its position with the elbow [illegible] in toward your side, until, as you reach outward with your left arm, the right arm will instinctively follow. At the top of the back swing the right elbow is out from your side some, but it will, with the right action, not be in back of you.

Tunney's Next Bout May Be in Chicago

Chicago, April 14 (A.P.).—With New York bridges burned behind him, Billy Gibson, manager of Gen Tunney, has laid the foundations for some new bridges here.

Gibson, conferring with Promoter Jim Mulleer, said that the heavyweight champion now was a free agent by action of the New York Boxing Commission in voiding Tunney's contracts with New York promoters, including Tex Rickard and others. Gibson said Tunney is ready to sign to make his next ring appearance in Chicago.

All that was necessary, according to Gibson, was ability on the part of Chicago promoter to procure the important money which a title champion requires. This could be done Mullen told him.

As an arena for the scrap, Miles believed Soldiers Field can be obtained. It will accommodate 110,000 spectators. If this arena could not be obtained, either of the baseball parks would seat enough to make the venture a paying one, Mullen said.

MacDonald Smith Has Relapse

New York, April 14 (A.P.).—Mac Donald Smith, one of this country's professional golfers of the country last year, has been ill all Winter in San Francisco and has just suffered a relapse, friends here said today.

Information that his condition had become worse was contained in a wire from Mrs. Smith to Johnny Hatiel, Smith's assistant at the Lakeville Golf and Country Club, Great Neck, N. Y., when the crack professional will be able to return, East is problematical.

He began to have trouble with his teeth shortly after reaching California last Fall and later contracted influenza.

Finnegan vs. Fink Monday Night

Honeyboy Finnegan has signed to box Frankie Fink at Philadelphia, Monday night, Dan Carroll, manager of the Honeyboy, announced today. The bout will be one of ten rounds and will be held at the Arena A. C.

Carroll said that if he had agreed to allow Finnegan to box Fink in Brooklyn, provided it was stipulated in the contract that the bout was for the world's featherweight championship.

KEENE RETURNS TO HANOVER COUNTRY CLUB

Tommie Keane has returned to the Hanover, N. H., Country Club where he has been the professional for four years. There is considerable work to be done on the Dartmouth course before it will be ready for the New Hampshire amateur championship tournament this Summer. Between them, Prof Charlie Proctor and Tommie Keane will have the Hanover layout in the best condition it has ever enjoyed before June.

SERVICE STABLE BURNED AT BELMONT PARK

Belmont Park, N. Y., April 13 (A.P.).—A large service stable connected with the Westchester Racing Association's track here burned to the ground tonight. Twenty work horses stabled in the barn were saved. Firemen from five communities were called to fight the blaze.

LOSS OF MISS CURTIS BLOW TO GOLF TEAM

The loss of Miss Margaret Curtis and Mrs. N. W. Webster to the Northern District team of the W. G. A. is a severe one. Mrs. Webster was operated on recently and she will be out of the game for some months, while Miss Curtis is forced out of the line up due to a lame back.

B. C. GRIDMEN MAKE GOOD ON DIAMOND

By JOHN B. GILLOOLY.

Anyone who believes that football players don't make good diamond stars should get in touch with Coach Jack Slattery at Boston College and find out that they are wrong. For the Eagle coach would rather have a gridiron boy out for his team than any other kind of an athlete.

Every man on the Eagle varsity nine, with the lone exception of Lefty Shea, the twirler, has made the football welkin ring with his deeds on the striped field.

In the Boston College infield there are Al Weston and Fat Clinton of the varsity football team. Weston was selected on All-American teams all over the country.

Weston does not confine his athletic endeavor to the gridiron. His batting average of .485 for his first year in collegiate baseball is testimony enough of this. He led all the college hitters last Spring.

Clinton is a hard fielding little centre. He beat out Phil Larkin, a veteran of three seasons, for the job last Fall.

Moncewicz and O'Day, short stop and third baseman, are heading towards big league baseball careers. That is why neither of them was heard of during the past football campaign. But we turn back a few pages and find that both boys were on the football squad in their freshman year. Coach Cavanaugh was all het up over the running of Moncewicz in the half back berth.

Joe McKenney, captain of the eleven, is playing left field. Jimmy McNamara, captain of the team nine was formed, by no [illegible] authority than Major Ed[illegible] "the best football player I ever [illegible]" He will be a candidate for [illegible] Fall, and will no doubt be seeing a regular halfback berth.

Bo McMillin, the peppy Etile catcher, makes a third man on the Eagle nine who has risen up football with the intention of having all he has for the [illegible]. He showed that he was a great little fullback in high [illegible] and could make the Eagle team [illegible] he cared to.

Smokey Kelliher [illegible] outfielder, held down [illegible] of substitute quarterback. He is one of those boys who hasn't quite enough stuff to make the varsity grade, but is always a good man to have among the reserve corps.

Fred Wright Out for Five Weeks

Fred Wright the Massachusetts amateur golf champion [illegible] unable to play for at least five weeks it was learned today. [illegible] X-ray pictures of his broken ankle were examined.

Wright stepped on a small stone, turned his ankle and in an effort to save himself from falling placed all his weight on his right foot. The bone in his ankle, unable to carry the additional weight, snapped.

He will not be permitted to exercise the ankle until late May. The champion has cancelled all exhibition matches scheduled.

AMES AND PLATT READY TO ROW

Oliver Ames has been relieved from probation and automatically he comes eligible for the Crimson varsity crew.

Ames is one of the three "H" men who rowed in the varsity against Yale last June. He failed to pass the mid-year examination and was put on probation but by securing unusually good averages at the April four Examinations, he regained good standing. He will undoubtedly row in one of the Harvard varsity boats this Spring.

Capt. Geoffrey Platt has apparently recovered from his sinus trouble. He declared that he would soon be ready to take his place in one of Coach Brown's crews, and although handicapped by his lack of practice, should not have much trouble in winning a seat.

125 ENTER FOR TITLE RING BATTLES

More than 125 entries are expected to be made for the annual National boxing championships to be decided at the Boston Arena on April 7, 8 and 16, according to early indications and it is expected that this two night fixture will prove more successful this year than ever.

From all sections of the country, entries for the tournament are pouring in. Following word from San Francisco that eight boxers would make the trip to the Hub, word was received from Los Angeles that three more would be entered while Hollywood will send three more.

New Orleans, New York, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Grand Rapids, Louisville, New Haven, Cleveland and other cities already have informed Tom Kanaly that large delegations will make the trip here for the championship.

For the ample reason that amateur boxing has had its most successful year in the cities of the country, Hub fans are expected to witness more classy boys in action this year than ever before.

Hub fans fear that the New England champions who will represent Boston in the tournament may be outclassed in the big tournament of the year, but the Hub fighters, relentless in their determination to win, already have started active training for the event.

From all sections of New England demands for tickets are coming fast. Tickets this year will be sold in doubles, admitting to both nights. This will give the fans the opportunity of getting the same seat for both nights' tournament.

Tickets may be procured at the Arena, B. A. A. and Room 2, No. 338 Washington street.

The N. E. A. A. A. U. boxing committee has selected 17 entries for the national. The boxers selected by the board of governors follow:

112-lb. Class—Gene Bianco, East Boston and Alcide Nadeau, Holyoke.

Hugh Devlin of Fall River, alternate.

118-lb. Class—Fred O'Connor, South Boston, Tony Solnick, Worcester.

126-lb Class—Andy Callahan, Lawrence, Harry Devine, Worcester.

135-lb. Class—Jack McCarron Somerville and Tony Costa, South Boston.

147-lb. Class—Ray Cuskey, Chelsea and Leroy Carlisle, Worcester.

160-lb. Class—Joe Barlow, Roxbury and Jimmy Cronin, Somerville.

175-lb. Class—Joe Mendes, New Bedford and Eddie Bradley, Somerville.

Heavyweight Class—Salvatore Andrews, East Boston, John Lynch East Boston.

None of these boxers will be allowed to take part in any open or special show before the championships.

Finnegan-Chapman in Big Fistic Parade

By Jack Conway

MR. BOSTON was in a carefree mood when he breezed into the sporting department today.

"I was at a banquet with Mayor Nichols the other night," opined the veteran. "His Honor told those at the dinner that something should be done to advertise Boston and New England like our clipper ships used to do when he was a boy. I told Mal (there isn't anything like getting chummy with the boss of the town) that I thought young Mister Jimmy Maloney, and the youthful Mister Jack Sharkey were getting more publicity for our fair city than did our clipper ships. His Honor agreed with me.

"Millions of people scattered in all parts of the world are today reading about Boston's two heavyweight contenders, one of whom may win the title from Gene Tunney.

"Jimmy and Sharkey are not going to have things all their own way when it comes to boosting Boston and New England. I have just read the news from New York to the effect that Honeyboy Finnegan of Dorchester and Red Chapman of Chelsea will battle for the world's featherweight championship at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, on June 8.

"It is getting to a point in New York where a promoter does not dare put on a big show unless he has a couple of Boston kids in the windup.

"When the Finnegan-Chapman tussle is out of the way, the champion will have a New England lad as a challenger. Sammy Fuller of the North End, who recently defeated Chapman at the Arena, and Chick Suggs of New Bedford, who has also a victory over Red to his credit, will step to bat with a challenge for the newly crowned champion.

Mr. Boston

New England's fistic wares. I understand that Mello will appear in several big outdoor shows in New York during the coming Summer which will be another boost for little old New England.

"Johnny Vacca's feat of twice defeating Fidel LaBarba, world's flyweight champion, convinced the world that New England has good little battlers as well as stars in the heavyweight parade.

"I EXPECT it will be quite a scrap when Finnegan and Chapman swing into action in New York. It will be the third time that this pair have met in the ring. In the first tussle, Chapman won the decision. They battled again at Braves Field last Summer and the award went to Finnegan.

"The last bout was fought above the featherweight limit of 126 pounds. Chapman felt at the time that if Honeyboy had made weight for the tussle that he would have been beaten. Chapman is a natural featherweight and does not have any trouble in getting down to 126 pounds. Finnegan made this notch for Chick Suggs at the Arena last November, but had difficulty in boiling off the last couple of pounds.

"Red is getting married tonight and probably figures that the world's featherweight championship would be a fitting present for him to give his bride.

"THE old town will be much like a deserted village when Sharkey and Maloney collide in New York on May 19. The same conditions will hold true when Finnegan and Chapman meet in their title skirmish on June 8.

"Boston and New England boxers have become so prominent that local promoters now must bid for the 'naturals' against Tex Rickard and Humbert Fugazy. As the New York promoters can offer greater financial inducements than can our local clubs, it looks as though we'll have to remain quartered along the Roaring Forties of Broadway if we are not to miss the ring classics between New England's favorite sons."

Maloney Must Keep Suffolk Contract

By JACK CONWAY

DAN CARROLL, manager of Jim Maloney, has been given until next Monday by the Massachusetts Boxing Commission to iron out his affairs with Matchmaker Tom Goodwin of the Suffolk A. A.

The Massachusetts commission has upheld the contract the Suffolk A. A. has with Maloney, and unless there is a satisfactory settlement between Goodwin and Carroll by next Monday, Maloney will be matched to fight Harry Greb, the contract having been signed by Matchmaker Goodwin and Carroll.

Jack Conway

The contract called for the contest to be staged at the New Polo Grounds on February 14. Maloney then got a chance to box Tom Heeney, New Zealand heavyweight champion, for the Suffolk A. A. purse, but Heeney's manager refused to let him box Maloney, saying that Heeney would not have Maloney in Boston.

After Maloney defeated Delaney Carroll announced that Maloney's next match would be against Heeney in Boston. Instead of keeping the contract, Carroll signed Heeney to box Maloney before the Dec. 12 date. Maloney won a popular decision over Heeney in New York on March 18.

When Heeney first came to this country he was not considered much of a fighter, but he has since shown signs of real ability. In a recent start against Phil Scott Heeney proved he was entitled to a match with any American heavyweight.

MATCHMAKER GOODWIN was not particularly anxious to toss a monkey wrench into the Greb-Maloney bout. Before Dan Carroll broke the Maloney contract with the Suffolk A. A. Goodwin had practically completed arrangements for a match between Greb and Maloney. There were only a few differences with Tex Rickard. The latter agreed to give Greb a purse over a million dollars to come to Boston to fight Jack Dempsey.

As Maloney gets a 40 per cent agreement with the New York Commission, Rickard or Tex could both go to Maloney-Heeney contract will be accepted by Messrs. Farley, Muldoon and Breslin.

Meanwhile, Promoter Taylor of Chicago is attempting to block the Maloney-Greb match on the ground he has a contract for a Maloney-Greb bout. He admits receiving $1,500 for release re Maloney from a February date but insists that Carroll after signed a second contract.

MEANWHILE, Jack Sharkey's manager is after a bout with Pat Mcfarlin in Chicago in April before the New York commission. Most of the New York boxing writers have taken action which was promised to do so by the Illinois Commission.

The Connecticut Commission which has a week of no contests with both Mike and Jack Burke taken up the matter. The result is that Johnny Buckley, manager of Sharkey, has been asked to tell his story of the events prior to the New York Commission. He also stated today that he would go to New York next week.

"I did not believe I shall have any difficulty in securing a contract for a bout with Mcfarlin in Chicago," said Buckley. "I have talked with Joe Gans, Illinois promoter, on the long distance 'phone and have asked him to match Jack Mcfarlin in Chicago at an early date in June.

"Sharkey would have gone to camp with Mcfarlin before March 1 if it had not been for injuries he received in his contest with Mike McTigue.

Meanwhile, Sharkey and Mcfarlane planning to start training for their bouts. Neither has thought whether that the present controversies will interfere with the coming match.

It is likely, though, that Rickard will be obliged to announce his plans shortly in order to straighten out some of the tangled lines.

Tickets for the Sharkey-Christy bout are now being printed and will be placed on sale in a week or so.

Tufts Nine Opens Season at Lowell

The Tufts baseball team opens its season at Lowell today, facing the Lowell Textile nine. After ten days of intensive practice, the Jumbo players are ready for a strenuous campaign.

In practice games, they have shown great hitting power. Today the box will undoubtedly be occupied by "Letty" Robinson, last year's ace at the start when Seth Smith and Booker will get a chance to do their stuff.

The Brown and Blue is unfortunate in starting the season without its leader, Captain Fred Fulton, who is forbidden to play ball on account of illness. Fred was a star on second line and makes a big gap. Straitiff, last year's artisan is doing the position now, and "Pots" Kennedy will be at short.

Standing on Facts

THIS Easter we're celebrating our 34th Anniversary, and it's almost impossible to realize the difference in the Style of Living and the Style of Dress between Easter 1893 and Easter 1927.

At that time there were no automobiles in the street, no airplanes overhead, no subways underground and no electric cars on the surface. The old cable cars were running on Broadway, New York, and little steam engines were pulling the elevated trains. The city was lighted by gas.

A fashion plate for Easter 1894 looks like a caricature today. At that time women wore their hair and skirts long, their shoes high. You rarely saw the top of the high-buttoned kid boots. Waists were extremely small and sleeves were very large. Today it's just the other way.

Charlie Chaplin is the only individual today who wears a man's hat that was stylish in 1894, but no man today is wearing the extremely pointed razor toed shoes that were the "latest style" 34 years ago.

But everybody dressed up for Easter as they do today, and everybody wore shoes. And the Regal Policy Platform is the same today as when we started this business 34 years ago, i. e., One Quality, One Profit, One Price, From Maker to Wearer.

Today the Regal Shoe Company is the largest One Price manufacturing retailer of high grade shoes in the world. And on our 34th Anniversary we're selling more shoes in 12 hours than we were in 12 months in 1894.

The purchasing power of a National Institution, concentrating its entire Factory Production on One Quality, shipping direct to its own Chain of Stores from Coast to Coast, and selling all Styles at One low price and One small profit, makes it possible to give you greater Value and more Style, for less money.

Never in the history of this company have we been able to give you greater values or a finer selection of styles for Easter than we are now showing in all Regal windows in the 70 Regal Stores from New York to San Francisco.

Oak Gate 800 Years Old

AN ancient gate made of oak which was hung in 1288, nearly 800 years ago, at Baliol College, Oxford, has been found (its whereabouts was unknown after the first 500 years), and it has been returned to its old place.

Easter Breakfast Is Becoming More Popular Now

By MARTHA LEE

ONE of the most unique and distinctive forms of entertainment, as well as one which is becoming increasingly popular, is the Easter breakfast party.

The time is arranged to suit the convenience of guests, which usually means a leisurely 10 or 11 o'clock start. Any particularly ambitious persons who prefer to arise earlier can have a cup of coffee at home to sustain them until time for the party.

The hostess must prepare for prodigious appetites. Suppose some of the men have been digging in their gardens since dawn, as is quite likely in a garden-loving community. What quantities of ham and eggs they will be able to dispose of! The Easter breakfast, of course, includes this delectable American dish.

The table should be attractively decorated, and nothing is more lovely for this time of year than Spring flowers. Daffodils or tulips are particularly effective for a morning party. They are fresh and gay and give an air of cheer and welcome to the table.

If yellow flowers are used, have a combination fruit cup of oranges and grapefruit sections at the places when the guests sit down.

Let the main course immediately follow the fruit. This should consist of great platters of thinly sliced ham with fried eggs, the yellow and white making a delightful contrast against the golden brown of the ham. With this course serve hot muffins and coffee.

For dessert, waffles, crisp and brown with maple syrup, will provide a most satisfactory ending to a delightful repast.

Graham Muffins—One cup bread flour, 1 cup graham flour, 2 tablespoons sugar, 4 teaspoons baking powder, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 cup milk, 1 egg (well beaten), 3 tablespoons melted shortening.

Mix and sift flour, sugar, baking powder and salt. Add beaten egg and milk and mix well. Add melted shortening. Bake in well-greased muffin tins in a hot oven (400 degrees F. C.) 25 minutes. This makes 12 muffins.

Rolled Oats Muffins—Two cups rolled oats, one and one-half cups sour milk, one-quarter cup melted shortening, one third cup sugar, one egg, well beaten, one teaspoon soda, one-half teaspoon salt, one cup flour.

Soak rolled oats in sour milk over night. In the morning add remaining ingredients, fill greased muffin pans with mixture and bake in a hot oven 20 minutes. Makes about 12 muffins.

Date Muffins—Two cups flour, two tablespoons sugar, one egg, one cup milk, three-quarters teaspoon salt, four teaspoons baking powder, two tablespoons melted shortening, one-half cup chopped dates.

Sift flour, salt, sugar, baking powder. Stir in egg, milk and melted shortening. Add dates. Pour into greased muffin tins and bake in hot oven 375 degrees F.

Waffles (Sweet Milk)—Two cups flour, three teaspoons baking powder, one-half teaspoon salt, two eggs, one and one-half cups milk, three tablespoons shortening.

Sift flour, baking powder and salt together. Add milk to beaten egg yolks and stir into dry ingredients. Add melted shortening and fold in stiffly beaten egg whites.

Variations—Cocoanut: Add one-half cup cocoanut just before pouring onto the griddle. Nuts: Add one-half cup finely ground nuts and one tablespoon sugar.

Waffles (Sour Milk)—Two cups flour, one teaspoon salt, three-quarters teaspoon soda, one teaspoon baking powder, one and one half cups sour milk, two eggs, three tablespoons melted shortening.

Sift flour, salt, soda and baking powder. Combine egg yolks, melted shortening and sour milk. Stir the liquid into the dry ingredients until smooth. Fold in stiffly beaten whites of eggs. Bake on hot irons.

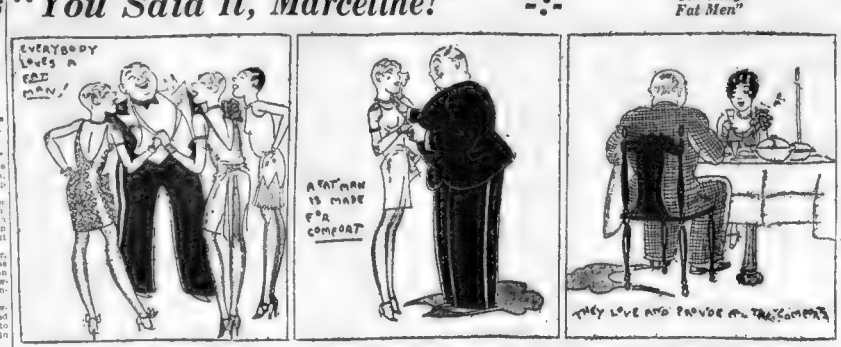
Faithfully yours,
MARTHA LEE

P. S.—Re special request we have decided to repeat last Tuesday's successful Frankfort Party next period, April 11, at 2 p. m. Every one welcome. Lectures, souvenirs, luscious Frankfort sandwiches, the world's best piccalilli and oceans of delicious coffee for our guests. Saturday, at 2, in the new Martha Lee kitchen at 5 Winthrop square, just off Summer street.

"You Said It, Marceline!"

-:- On "Jolly Fat Men" -:-

By Marceline d'Alroy



EVERYBODY LOVES a fat man a little. Sometimes VERY LITTLE. But you can't HELP LIKING him, even if there is MORE Of him than you really need.

A FAT man is made for COMFORT, Not for SPEED. Of course, SPEED is THRILLING, but COMFORT is SATISFYING.

THIN men may be fine. But FAT men Are JOLLY—they LOVE Good things to EAT and provide An ALL COMFORTS of a HOME.

FAT MEN, like fat women, need NEVER be LONELY, for when NATURE gives A big HEART, she gives a big LAP and FATE fills it.

World Is O. K. if You Think So

By WINIFRED BLACK

BUDDY is sick—no, he isn't ill or ailing.

He's just plain American sick.

Never has he been well since he came over from France.

He was gassed and he was wounded, too, but no, it isn't going to be that stand in his way, so he came home and got a job and went to work in a bank. The other day he had to give up.

He'd had exciting spells for some time, and lately he'd been so weak it was difficult for him to stand up at the teller's window all day long. Now the doctor says he'll have to go out to the desert and live for a year. If it does that he may get well.

And what do you think? There wasn't any cabin for him to live in over there, and there is now. His buddies have built it for him.

The men who were members of the same army corps bought the lots and hired a truck and went out on the desert and built the cabin. They took a big barrel of water out with them and three or four boxes of supplies. When Buddy happened along in his little tin Ford about noon there was his cabin half way up. The stove was set up and coffee was boiling and bacon sizzling in a pan and all the fellows laughing and singing. Buddy isn't so down in the mouth as he was. He says he's almost well now.

What he sort of a good fellow to have such friends as that.

What a lot of good souls there are in the world, anyhow! You run along in good health and good spirits and good money and you get to thinking that the world is full of crafters. This one tries to borrow money; that one tries to put you out of your place and get into it himself. The other one is envious and tries to make you dissatisfied and unhappy.

"Ugly world," you say to yourself.

Then you lose your job and your health fails and you don't feel so much like singing when you get up in the morning and it takes more to make you laugh, and all at once—here they come trooping around you, the friends—the real friends.

There's Jack that you haven't seen much for years—he made an excuse to come and see you the other day, just to tell you how much he'd always thought of you. There's Mary, what a sweet note she wrote and she meant every word of it, too. You'd sort of forgotten Mary when you were so prosperous and gay—she hasn't forgotten you, that's sure.

Why, the world is a glorious place, full of glorious people. Buddy's found that out. For Buddy, down there in the desert in the cabin his friends built for him, fighting for his life.

I hope you won't have to come to Buddy's pass to find it out for yourself.

Heart Trouble and Indigestion

By Charles A. L. Reed, M. D.

MANY people are far too anxious about their hearts and mistake for signs of grave illness the palpitations and pains that really are due to indigestion—the result of overeating.

A visit to a reliable physician should set their minds at rest.

The first thing that occurs is heart hurry; the rate of the pulse goes up to ten or fifteen beats above normal. When the patient is at perfect rest it may drop to the normal. When he rises and moves about it runs up again. It responds too readily to violent exercise.

Of course, a person who is neurotic or inherits a tendency to excitement may suffer from similar acceleration and yet have a perfectly healthy heart; but as the trouble may also be due to tuberculosis it should be a sufficient warning to induce the patient to take medical advice.

The next sign is embarrassed breathing.

In the early stages of heart disease it occurs only on exercise and is simple in form, but as the disease advances, it takes on a number of forms and becomes acutely distressing.

The third symptom is fatiguability. The patient finds that he has lost his former endurance; he is easily tired, mentally and physically, and is conscious of not being up to the proper standard of fitness, but has not considered that his heart is to blame.

Fourth, comes a feeling of oppression about the chest which generally appears after severe exertion, and the person who is not alarmed about his heart will often think his stomach is out of order and that the trouble is due to gas. About this time he is liable to suffer with occasional stabbing pains about the apex of the heart and the left chest, and his physician will remind him, by his questions of symptoms that have been showing themselves for some years.

It is of the highest importance not to delay. Once these symptoms have developed, the condition will not cure itself and can only progress to a state in which the patient is a useless invalid. The heart is protesting against something somewhere.

The Modern Method Of Roasting Meat To Perfection

To the modern woman, there probably is no other food as useful in the kitchen as Mazola. Nearly every day she finds new uses for it in all cooking, frying, baking and for fine salad dressings.

This recipe from Ida Bailey Allen's New Book (see coupon below) demonstrates a new use for Mazola that is being welcomed everywhere.

Once you try Mazola for cooking you will never go back to the old fashioned way of using animal fats.

To Roast Meat

Wipe the meat with a damp cloth, place in a dripping pan or double roaster, dust with salt, pepper and flour, allowing from one to two tablespoons of flour to sift on the bottom of the pan, and put in a hot oven, 375 to 400 degrees F. to brown. This takes from fifteen to twenty minutes. Pour a little hot water into the pan containing two or three tablespoons Mazola and one-half tablespoon of Karo, Blue Label. Baste the meat with this every fifteen minutes, until done. Make a gravy from the drippings in the pan, adding a cup of boiling water to each half cup of drippings. If necessary, thicken the gravy with a little Argo or Kingsford's Cornstarch blended with cold water.

Send Only 10c (stamps—coin) with this coupon and you will receive a copy of Ida Bailey Allen's wonderful new Cook Book, beautifully bound, 172 pages of unusual recipes. Write Corn Products Refining Co., P. O. Box 171, Trinity Station, N. Y. C.

Why I do my washing at home now

I KNOW a way to get clothes whiter and brighter than I ever saw them before. And without one bit of hard rubbing! I don't even need to touch a washboard!

That's why I never send the wash out any more. I do it at home myself, so easily. And this way saves the clothes, too. They aren't scrubbed threadbare against a board.

I just soak everything in creamy Rinso suds. Dirt and stains come right out by themselves, and you ought to see how snowy-white even the most soiled things get!

This wonderful granulated laundry soap makes the water so soft and sudsy, I really like to use it!

The HOLLYWOOD GIRL

by BEATRICE BURTON
Author of "The LOVE WRECKER"

CHAPTER XLV

While Bobbie waited for the cab, she made up her face. A dab of blond powder here on her little nose, a touch of rouge there on her cheeks, the tiniest bit of of coral lip salve on her mouth. Then a jerk at the brim of her cunning little hat, to slant it a bit more over her left eye.

She carried all her little bundles into the kitchen.

It was a Saturday afternoon and bread was baking. The fragrant smell of it made Bobbie remember long-ago Saturday afternoons at home when Aunt Gertrude had made coffee cake and apple pies and muffins for Sunday—when Andy and she had "rowed" them, hot from the oven. Andy . . . Andy . . . Why couldn't she stop thinking about him and his red-headed stenographer?

What in the dickens did he need a stenographer for—or a secretary—or whatever she was? His job was to buy and sell used automobiles.

While she was wondering about him, the telephone in the hall rang sharply.

"Bobbie!" It was Gus MacCloud's voice. "Monica just called up. She wants us to go over to her house for supper. It's awful!"

Bobbie hesitated. "She hasn't asked me!"

"She will. I told her you were at home and that she could phone you if you'd be invited."

Bobbie didn't want to go to Monica's house that night. Even if she were friends with Monica, she wouldn't have wanted to go. For supper, or any other meal at Monica's, would be a crazy sort of affair with much drink and little food, deafening noise, silly talk that was mostly "smart" cracks" and never a word of sense.

And then Monica had such queer people at her house. Girls who wore too much paint and perfume, and too few clothes. Men who talked about themselves all the time, unless they were guzzling drinks.

"But if I don't go, she'll think I'm still angry with her about the pin—and because of the quarrel we had the other day," Bobbie thought quickly. "And I don't want to hurt her feelings."

"All right, I'll go if she calls me up," she said aloud to Gus. "Will stop for me here?"

That was Bobbie, all over. No matter how much a person might injure her as Monica had, she was ready to forgive her at a moment's notice. And not only to forgive her, but to forget all her wrongs as well. There was a great deal of wholesome sweetness in her character.

But there was a great deal of plain ordinary woman in her, too. And, as she hung the receiver on its black hook, she made up her mind to put Monica in her place that night. To outshine her the way the moon might outshine a glowworm.

Bobbie owned a bright red dress that she hardly ever wore. She loved the brilliant color of it, and the gold stitching that trimmed it. But, somehow, she thought it was too "loud." Too gay for her. Not in good taste.

But tonight she put it on, feeling that it matched the reckless unhappy mood she was in. She painted her mouth until it was the same color, and smoothed blond powder into her cheeks to cover up any minor blemishes that might afflict them. Then she screwed large imitation pearls into her ears, and hung a string of them around her neck.

She was in one of her plain white linen dresses, and she had a bandana handkerchief knotted around her slender brown throat. Her dark curls were faced on the windows of Monica's flat as she started across the street.

Instinct Told Gordon Jacqueline Would Be Hard to Handle

Gordon studies Lupino's case.

Instinct told him she would not be easy to handle.

"You would probably send him to prison."

'Forbidden Lips'; Lupino's Lawyer Calls On Jacqueline

Very good friend and client, Mr. Julius Lupino, found himself.

"You have seen the newspapers of course, Miss Kay?"

A quick instinct told him that this girl would not be easy to manipulate. She was of a finer, more sensitive type than he had expected.

"I have called personally, in this case, to find exactly where my client stands with you in regard to the seeming difficulty in which he finds himself. The charges, I understand, are manslaughter. It will not be an easy matter, Miss Kay, to acquit him. If we can swing it at all, though, you can readily see how important it is that we take full advantage of every item in our favor.

"You may. I will testify to exactly what happened."

"Of course you will. I was sure of that, Miss Kay."

His eyes, behind the polished lenses were inquisitive and, in some peculiar way, quieting to her jarred nerves.

"You may speak to me freely and frankly, Miss Kay. I will respect anything you say in the strictest confidence and, may I add, in a feeling of kindness and personal interest."

Jacqueline's confidence did not instantly go out to this unctuous stranger, but he did exert mysteriously a beneficent calmness that was almost a narcotic to her distraught sensibilities.

"You have not been near the Sea Shell, I understand, since that night?" he asked her, very gently.

"No. I'm never going there again," she told him painfully. "I couldn't."

His face saddened. "I was afraid of that," he told her in a voice of infinite regret. "I can understand perfectly how you feel, but I'm afraid a human life will depend on your decision in that matter, Miss Kay."

She looked at him frankly. "A human life?"

"Julius Lupino's. If he is convicted, it will be a matter of twenty years in prison. At his age, I should say that would reasonably be a matter of life and death to him, shouldn't you?"

"I don't see how my going back to the Sea Shell would have anything to do with that," she said in bewilderment.

"It has precisely as much to do with his conviction or acquittal, Miss Kay. You have read in the papers—as I will, I consider one of the most reasonable and chivalrous explanations printed in the press [illegible] Lupino, out of the [illegible] polished sincerity, [illegible] notes for decency [illegible] Miss Kay, we are going to [illegible] note of acquittal.

"It is for you to say whether or not Julius Lupino [illegible] the balance of his days [illegible] for an impulsive act of gallantry—in your behalf, please remember—I ranked the instantly career of one of the most dangerous crooks in Boston.

"I repeat, Miss Kay, it is entirely up to you whether this crude but in a gentleman at all, in fact, a [illegible] I shall [illegible] would be proud to have had my action commit [illegible] An earnestness, a passion in the tone of Mr. Abraham Gordon, [illegible] answering heat in [illegible] heart; but she stared at him with a lack of understanding in her eyes.

"I'll put the thought differently for you," he went on holding [illegible] fine living, compelling [illegible] Julius Lupino stands in grave danger of being convicted. The district attorney's office is against him. There is no telling what evidence they may conjure up to shatter his reputation. We can only support this position with your cooperation. Your cooperation means loyalty to the man who went to jail for you; who risked his liberty to avenge an insult offered you.

"Practically, that cooperation means that you have a solemn duty to continue your services at the Sea Shell. If you [illegible] made of this [illegible] our position will be [illegible] weakened. If you stand by Mr. Lupino, in your profession [illegible] you will not only show [illegible] you will show the entire [illegible] influence you one way or [illegible]

Tomorrow: Jacqueline takes her place as "Forbidden."

'I Don't Look Like Bobbie Ransom at All,' She Said

"I don't look like Bobbie Ransom at all," she told her shining reflection in the glass. "But I do look like the kind of girl the men fall for."

She was right. An hour later when she and Gus opened the door of Monica's flat she felt the eyes of every man in the crowded noisy room fastened on her.

It had never happened to her before in her life. For Bobbie's beauty wasn't the kind that flamed out like a peony. It was a gentle soft loveliness that grew on you the longer you looked at her.

But tonight her own beauty was hidden under the scarlet rouge, and the huge department store pearls, and the red dress that clung to her as she walked, swaying from the hips, across the room and into Monica's hot, bright little dressing room.

Monica, in black lace that showed her white skin, looked her up and down with narrowed blue eyes. "Well," said she, "I see you've got help to yourself at last. You look like somebody tonight. And, leaving that to sink in, she made her way back to her living room.

A couple of card tables in the centre were set out with plates of rye-bread sandwiches, with Swiss cheese and pearl onions, and with two huge glass bowls of gin-and-fruit punch.

Two men were lading out cups of it, when Bobbie went out into the room. Their backs were turned to her, and she saw that they had big white aprons tied around their waists. One of them wore a cook's white cap.

He half turned as Bobbie came up behind him, and looked at her. It was Roy Schultz.

"Happy days, Lovey," he said to her with a nervous grin, and swept the cap from his head before he handed her a cup of the punch.

She saw him flush, and she wondered if he was afraid she'd tell Lottie about him. Poor Lottie, at home alone with Jolly, no doubt, and wondering what kept Roy at the studio so late!

"Thanks, Mr. Schultz," she said, smiling at him as she took the cup, and then she turned away as soon as she could and began to talk to Ted Piper, who was somewhat the worse for drink already.

Gus came up to her with his cup of punch in hand. "Take a cup and drink it up, and you'll feel as slick as the dickens," he said, grinning at her cheerfully.

He stood very close to her, and put his arm around her. He had not done that for a long time. Not since she had forbidden him to. But now she didn't care, somehow.

No one noticed them particularly in the crowded room.

An Italian girl was singing in broken English, that it looked to her like "a hot time in the old town tonight."

Bobbie dimly remembered the tune of the old song she was singing. Hadn't her father sung it years and years before. Then, as she thought of her father, she began to think again of Andy Jerrold and the red-headed stenographer.

"I'll have another drink!" she cried, and Gus gave her a startled look with his blue-grey eyes as he started away to get it for her. She never drank like this.

And when he came back to her and turned her face up to his, in the crook of his arm, she let him kiss her again and again—and again.

"Why not?" she thought. "Who cares what I do?"

'Who Cares What I Do?' Bobbie Asked Herself

And that is a highly dangerous state of mind for a girl to be in—the state of mind where she thinks that it doesn't matter to anyone what she does.

They danced to the somewhat scratchy music of the radio, and the floor seemed to slip and slide under Bobbie's feet like the waves of the ocean. She clung to Gus, and laid her head on his shoulder as they went slowly around the room.

The blond in red is getting ready to pass out," she heard somebody say with a laugh.

She wondered hazily if it were true. She wondered what it would be like to "pass out" after a cup or two of punch.

She felt very unhappy just then. All the lights in the room seemed to be dancing before her eyes, so that she couldn't see anything else. But she knew that Gus was right there before her, and she leaned even closer to him.

"Let's get out of this place, Gus-taves," she murmured slowly and thickly. She couldn't hear her own voice about the din around her. But Gus evidently did, and ten minutes later they were sitting in his roadster.

The night air was cool and sweet as well water. It came to her nostrils in a rush and made her dizzier than ever. She laid her head on Gus' shoulder, and spoke to him very slowly and softly.

"Nothing matters much really. Nothing in the world—any more" she said. "Not to me. I must be getting hard-boiled."

Gus laughed. "You talk like an old-fashioned melodrama, Bob'a," he answered lightly. "That's what the heroine always said just before she threw herself from the railroad trestle."

Then his voice changed suddenly. It was thick and hoarse when he spoke again. "Doesn't anything matter to you, Bobbie?" he asked. "Doesn't this? And this— "He kissed her twice. "And this? This matters, doesn't it?"

She didn't answer. Her head dropped lower on his shoulder.

He knew then that she was holding her hand out to him, and that there was something in its palm that glittered in the glow of the street lamp.

"Would you take this and give me back Andy's bracelet?" she was asking quickly and dreamily. She must be him think of a child talking in its sleep.

He squinted up his steel-blue eyes to see what she had.

"Your aunt's pin. You found it then?" he asked. "Why sure, you may have the bracelet back. What do you want to do with it?"

He had to bend his head to hear her answer. And then he couldn't understand what she was talking about. Something about a red headed stenographer was all he could make out from the jumble of words.

"Bobbie, you don't know what you're trying to say. You're tired through your hat, and I'm going to take you home," he said.

As he leaned forward to start the engine, a little car that he knew turned into the street from Holly wood boulevard. It stopped across the road, and in the light of the street lamps, he saw Lottie Schultz get out.

It Really Happened

EVERYONE loves a good story. But how tame and unreal a fiction story is compared with a story that really happened!

The most fascinating characters are those that actually live—people such as we see around us every day. The most dramatic events are those that unfold on the stage of life—events often so thrilling, so strange that we are amazed when we realize that they are true.

Every month True Story Magazine prints 16 or more powerful, gripping, heart-touching narratives lifted right out of life itself. Its stories of love and marriage, of success and failure, of temptation and struggle, of laughter and tears have made this great magazine the favorite with over eight million readers. You, too, will enjoy it. True Story for May is now on the newsstands—price only a quarter. Get your copy today.

UTILIZE YOUR SPARE TIME BY SOMETHING USEFUL

How does your mind act when you have time to think?

Do you conjure up thoughts of the past or do you plan futures?

Do you get your greatest satisfaction thinking of past accomplishments?

Or do you, with accomplishments in the back of your mind, reach out for new and other praiseworthy future attainments?

It is foolish to ruminate upon the past in all your leisure time.

Husbands and wives often spend their spare time recounting past incidents, humorous and otherwise.

It is fine to be companionable to each other, but unless you are so aged that the time for accomplishment is past, why not use a part of your time in making future plans?

Sometimes a man likes to talk of the future and his wife is not so practical.

Sometimes it is the other way around.

But in any case why don't you try to get together periodically and frequently and think out ways and means whereby you can pull together for a more glorious future.

THE OTHER GIRL

By Ada Patterson

At [illegible] Bruce Kilbourne made his way [illegible] the car and stairway of a Fifth avenue bus, and sought a seat which would enable him to survey without being detected the lovely form of a girl in brown.

Waiting for this particular fellow passenger had become part of the day's adventure with him. Even now as the vehicle jogged along Bruce sat on the seat tampering the stern formality which must unconventional meeting with fair young women taboo.

He wanted very much to speak to her, yet he knew he must [illegible] with sitting and staring at her, and letting his thoughts run riot.

"Gosh," he reflected, "she must brush that chestnut hair of hers for hours on end. And what a face! Features that put Venus de Milo's profile to shame, textured, too. All the little marks of breeding and refinement. Gosh, all, why can't a follow—just. . . ."

But now the attractive passenger was leaving the bus. She balanced herself gracefully as she trod along its swaying top, tripped lightly down the winding stairs and was soon mingled with the bread winning mass in the street below.

"I've got to meet her—to know her!" Bruce told himself fiercely.

Later that day he wrote a long letter to his co-ed sister, explaining his plight and asking for advice and suggestions from the "flapper" who aimed to know much concerning the ways and means of love.

"Why don't you follow her chump?" the youngster's reply to received. "Try to say something knocks at every man's door once, and it seems to me if you want to know this girl, it's up to you to find the way," her letter continued. But Bruce Kilbourne, always mindful of the conventions, stubbornly resisted temptation.

Once his heart played a trick that it had never played even in the hottest football scrimmage. It leaped to his throat and lodged there when he discovered that the only vacant seat in all the bus proved to be one next to the lovely girl in brown.

He slipped into it looked straight ahead, then opened his newspaper. Once he stole a glance at her face. "Lovely," he thought. "strong yet soft, womanly—"

Again she was leaving him. He heard her cool contralto asking, "May I pass, please?"

"I beg your pardon." He arose hastily and touched his hat. A slight bend of her head. An acknowledgment of his courtesy or a preparation for the descent down the steps. He wondered.

Several times in the office that day he found himself dreaming of her. Despair followed. "In a city of six million persons where I scarcely know a soul socially, how can I possibly meet her, in the conventional way?" At that juncture the chief interrupted his train of thought.

"Does your frown mean you're puzzled about the aqueduct contract?" he was saying. "So am I. Suppose you drop in at the public library for some research on it. I want to be quite sure that our idea is original. It would be embarrassing if we found that someone else had already used it."

Dinner in a corner of the Engineers Club, a two miles walk up the avenue, and Bruce Kilbourne mounted the marble steps of the library, took an elevator and strode through the hall to the reference room. A swift survey at the index. Quick notation of the letters and numbers of back copies of the Engineers' magazine—his card bearing his name and address.

He joined the line of inquirers and placed the card upon the librarian's desk. A brown head bent above it, then lifted itself eyes looked into his and smiled. The Girl of the Bus! Her cool, contralto voice addressed him while his heart leaped and again found lodgment in his throat.

"Mr. Kilbourne? My cousin, who belongs to the same club of engineers in Chicago, told me you were in town. He said he had given you a letter of introduction to me. I haven't received it."

"No. Because—bliss flooded his being and swept in a scarlet flood to his face, "of—you."

The girl's color heightened. Her lips parted, then closed upon the words she might have spoken. His sister's written words smote him. "Opportunity knocks at every man's door!"

Semblance of sanity returned. "Pardon my bungling. I mean—I am so surprised to find Jack Norton's cousin here."

"When for three months you have had her address in his letter of introduction?" Her mischievous smile fashioned distracting dimples.

Bruce looked resentfully at the line witheringly returned his look.

"I will explain, if I may escort you home this evening," he said.

She smiled and turned to serve the silently clamoring line.

A month later, when he formally proposed in the staid little drawing room of the Business Girls Club, he said: "So you were the other girl in our case. It was because I had fallen in love with you that I didn't present my letter of introduction to you. Involved as it sounds, I think you understand."

"I do," she answered.

"I shall always mourn those wasted three months. Why didn't your write, asking me to call with my letter of introduction?"

"For the same reason that you didn't present your letter. My mind was on the man in the bus."

Her look completed his bewilderment.

"But—darling—you never saw me."

"Oh, didn't I, though," she defied him.

MEDBURY SAYS---

By JOHN P. MEDBURY

A WOMAN is suing for divorce because she's married to a traveling salesman. She says she's tired of being a widow while her husband is living.

SOMETIMES she thinks it would be better if he was dead so that she could give the children a definite answer.

SHE'S planning to put them in an orphan asylum so that they can get some home life.

THE kids are studying geography in order to keep up with their father.

SO far, he's three States ahead of them.

THEY haven't seen him since the last time he came home to put a mortgage on the house.

HIS wife says she's going to divorce him and marry a stationary engineer.

A HUSBAND in your arms is worth two on the road.

IT'S her own fault for getting married in a hurry. They went to the altar with the license in one hand and a time table in the other.

THEY spent their honeymoon in a waiting room.

HE didn't take her on the road with him because she had to stay home and do his laundry.

THE nearest she got to Niagara Falls was the washtube.

BUT he's a wonderful husband. He never fights with her when he's away.

THE only time they ever had an argument was when he was home.

HE promised to love, honor and obey, but he reserved the rights for out of town.

HE'S crazy about her though, he says he's going to see her again sometime if he has to make a special trip.

SHE doesn't mind his being away from home so much, but she can't collect his insurance.

TRAVELING salesmen may not make the best husbands in the world, but they've saved many a woman from becoming an old maid.

THE SAYINGS OF MRS. SOLOMON---BY HELEN ROWLAND

MY Daughter, what is so astonishing to a woman as the deference and the secret devotion with which her husband's stenographer glorifieth him?

Behold, unto his wife a man is only an overgrown infant. But, unto his stenographer he is a Mighty Intellect, a Human Dynamo, and a Master Mind.

For, lo, his stenographer hath never beheld him without his COLLAR, nor with his face covered with shaving-lather and his hair standing aloft as a shorn wheat-field!

His stenographer hath not watched him when he lay prostrate beneath the car, full of grease and perspiration and perplexity and profanity!

She hath never put his feet in mustard water nor soothed him when he was ill and frightened and ready to eat out of a woman's hand.

She hath never seen him with a thermometer instead of a cigar sticking out of his mouth, nor hath she watched him hold his nose while she poured castor oil down is throat.

His stenographer hath never beheld him sprawled upon all fours, while he wound up the Baby's toys or played with Bobby's Meccano set.

She hath not looked on while he struggled into a boiled shirt and strove to "look natural" in a wing collar and a painful pair of pumps.

She hath never watched him when he wrestled with his Sunday fowl, and left it limp and mutilated upon the platter; nor surveyed him when he washed the dog and sought to master the animal with battle cries.

She hath never heard him mutter in his sleep, nor hearkened to his howls of pain, while she spread the soothing liniment over his sunburned shoulders.

She hath never seen him groping for a towel with his eyes shut, or endeavoring to shave around the dimple in his chin. She hath never been called upon to wash his BACK!

She hath never beheld him when he regarded his own beauty in the mirror as he tied on his new Spring cravat and sought to make his cowlick lie down.

She hath never had to FEED him, to nurse him, to find his shoes, nor to put him to bed after a celebration! She hath never put the ice upon his head, the plaster upon his back, nor the hot water bottle to his feet!

Lo, why should a man's stenographer NOT regard him as a mighty and glorified Being? For his wife might likewise revere him if she saw him only from nine to five!

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes — pimples — a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent. of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil as a substitute for calomel to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are gentle in their action yet always effective. They bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

Plight of Men Who Marry Money---and Some Others

By B. C. FORBES.

NEW YORK, April 14.—The hardest men to help to find jobs often are those who have married money, not enough money to make them entirely independent financially, but enough to raise them to a social status and scale of living decidedly beyond their earning power.

Another pitiable class are those whose wives possessed more or less money when married, but later, for some reason or other, ceased to enjoy any income.

B. C. Forbes

I have reached the conclusion that the young man most likely to succeed is he who has been brought up in modest circumstances, followed closely by the young man of well-to-do but not wealthy parents, who kept close to their children and inculcated in them proper ideas of economy and of industriousness.

• • •

IT IS far from true, however, that rich parents are always fatal to a young man's success in life. The exceptions are very numerous—one might say astonishingly numerous. This is particularly true when the sons follow in their father's business shoes.

On the whole, however, inherited wealth hurts more young men than it helps.

BUT THEIR plight, if such it can be called, is as nothing compared with the plight of fellows who marry some money, regardless of whether the married money continues to come along or is shut off.

"I must find a good job because my wife has some money and we live on a rather costly scale," is the tale often brought to me.

Such fellows imagine that simply because they have jumped out of their original social scale, they are entitled to much more salary than formally. It would be undignified for them, they think, to fill an ordinary job. They forget that the mere fact of their having married some money has not raised their earning power one iota.

REAL TRAGEDIES have come to my notice where married money has been lopped off. After having established a style of living far beyond the husband's earning capacity, wife and husband and children all usually dread having to drop out of their accustomed social circle.

Quite often, under such circumstances, the husband has failed to develop his talents to the utmost because he didn't have the prod of necessity. He was content to jog along comfortably, his main concern being to enjoy life rather than to fit himself to push forward in the world.

ONLY THE OTHER day a young man afflicted with a serious physical handicap complained bitterly to me that, to his amazement, his boss din't give him a big increase in salary the week he married. "Did you suddenly become worth a lot more to him?" I asked.

"No, but you know and he knows and I know that my living expenses went up a lot when I got married."

I tried to explain that wages and salary in this workday world are not fixed in accordance with an employe's expenditure, but in accordance with his worth to his employer and that business concerns don't have one scale of pay for single men and another scale for married men. When I asked if he had consulted the boss about the advisability of getting married in view of his terrible handicap, he indignantly replied that it was none of his boss' business!

IS IT not high time that our schools and colleges and universities made an honest effort to bring home to boys and youths some understanding of the economic realities of life? It is a tragic fact that thousands and thousands even of college graduates face the world without giving the slightest thought as to how they intend to earn their existence, without the slightest thought as to what line of life they would like to follow. And they often have the most fantastic notions as to the salary the world should be eager to pay them.

• • •

AFTER ALL, is not the problem of earning a living the overtowering problem which faces nine out of every ten youths on leaving school?

SHE STUDIES TEXTILES

BOSTON WOMAN SPECIALIST

Miss Susan L. Bates, who once worked in a Boston department store, now an expert investigator for the U. S. Department of Agriculture. She is investigating the cause of the great decrease in cotton goods demand.

Susan L. Bates, of Boston, specialist in textiles and clothing, has been appointed to the staff of the Bureau of Home Economics of the United States Department of Agriculture to study the cotton situation from the standpoint of the woman consumer.

She will study design of cotton fabrics with a view to learning how they meet or fail to meet the requirements of women's and children's garments in vogue at the present time. Style appeal, artistic and hygienic qualities, and other points which may influence the consumer in choosing between fabrics of the different fibers will be considered.

Miss Bates is thoroughly acquainted with the cotton situation from the production, consumption, and sales angles. A native of Texas and a graduate of the Texas State College for Women, Miss Bates knows what cotton growing entails. In the State Colleges of Louisiana and Iowa she taught clothing design for eight years. For over a year she assisted in the cost of living survey made by the United States Department of Labor. Miss Bates organized and directed the educational work for dry goods stores in Ames, Iowa. She spent several months gaining selling experience in a large department store in Boston.

The purpose of the study of the bureau of home economics will be to find some of the reasons why cotton sales for clothing and household use have decreased, and what changes manufacturers of cotton fabrics can effect so as to make their products meet consumer demands.

Through the extension service and connection with State colleges and universities the bureau of home economics has contact with rural women, who probably use more cotton for clothing than any other group of consumers. This study will give these women an opportunity to make known their desires and needs to cotton manufacturers.

Miss Bates will make her headquarters in New York and will work in close co-operation with cotton manufacturers through the Cotton Textile Institute and other associations.

COCHRAN 'TIP' ON MOTORS IS MAKING GOOD

By FRANK H. MELOON, Financial Editor.

Last October Thomas Cochran of J. P. Morgan & Co., preparing to sail for Europe, was quoted as predicting General Motors would sell "at least 100 points higher." For a Morgan partner to give such a "tip" was without precedent and a half-hearted denial was issued. Few, if any, doubted the veracity of the young interviewer. General Motors was then selling for 189, compared with the current peak, after allowance for the 50 per cent. stock dividend of 1-27. This comes within 10 points of making good the prediction of a 100-point rise.

Faith in New England railroads is strong today. This faith is in sharp contrast to the feeling prevalent only a few months ago. It is shown on the ticker tapes in quotations that have attracted very wide attention. Railroads all over the country have been showing improvement, but none more marked than those in this section.

N. L. Amster, Boston copper and railroad financier, is among those thoroughly converted to the bullish side regarding the Boston & Maine. Note that at the annual meeting Mr. Amster, now abroad, was represented by C. R. Jeffers, who voted over 60,000 shares of stock as a "partial" representation of the holdings of Mr. Amster and his associates.

Howard Elliott, former president of the New Haven, now chairman of the Northern Pacific, is a looming figure in one of the proposed big railroad mergers. It is proposed that the Northern Pacific and the Great Northern join hands. Chairman Elliott states the merger cannot be entered upon until all the stock comes in and that then the question will have to be passed upon by the Interstate Commerce Commission. A majority of the stock has not yet come in, but more and more proxies are being received from time to time.

If Charles Evans Hughes, former Secretary of State, consents to Gov. Fuller's request to consider the Boston Elevated problem, he will have no inconsiderable task on his hands. One angle from which he might view the "L" is shown by quoting from his argument for the railroads, which was quoted as follows in this column Jan. 26: "Earning capacity is an essential fact to be considered in the determination of value. Consideration must be given to earnings from just and reasonable rates in the past and at the present time and to the probable trend of earnings in the future. The value of property results from the use to which it is put and varies with the profitableness of that use, present and prospective, actual and anticipated. The value of property, generally speaking, is determined by its productiveness."

Edgar B. Davis had a tilt over Bay State taxes that resulted in his changing his legal residence from Brockton to Luling, Tex. Both cities had benefited by million-sized benefactions from Mr. Davis. "Pithy Personalities" in the Boston News Bureau shows Mr. Davis in a new role, saying: "On Broadway now there is playing a drama, 'The Ladder,' which is known as an 'uplift play,' and, like many plays in its class, it has been losing almost steadily since its premiere last October. It is continued solely because of the producer's confidence in the play's theme and its ability to educate play-goers. The 'angel' of the play is Edgar B. Davis, Texas oil man, who has for several years been finding worthy outlets for his profit. It is estimated that his losses weekly since October have been from $2,000 to $5,000."

HALF OF STOCKINGS IN U. S. ARE ALL COTTON

About half the stockings manufactured in the United States in 1926 were entirely of cotton. Analysis by Association of Cotton Textile Merchants of New York of the latest census report on the hosiery industry shows that out of 103,707,333 dozen pairs of stockings manufactured in 1925 50,402,000 dozen pairs were all cotton. More than 21,000,000 dozen pairs of half-hose, or 54 per cent. of total production of this type were of cotton, and cotton was used in mixture with other fibers or for tops, heels and toes in manufacture of two-thirds of the remaining output. Production of all-silk hose for men declined more than 74 per cent. from 1923; all-wool hose fell off more than 36 per cent., while the output of all-cotton hose in 1925 was 5 per cent. lower than in 1923.

New York Curb

New York, April 14.—Stock prices were steady in the Curb Market today. Warner Brothers featured with a two-point gain at 25½; Deere advanced ⅛ to 101½ and Serv-el was up slightly at 6. Freshman declined ¼ to 11 and Film Inspecting lost ⅛ to 5½. American Superpower B opened at 33⅛, a new high. Prairie Pipe gained at 149.

COTTON CONSUMPTION OF MARCH IS GREATER

Washington, April 14 (A.P.).—Cotton consumed during March totalled 694,193 bales of lint and 68,176 of liners compared with 590,447 of lint and 60,336 of linters in February this year and 635,896 of lint and 65,636 of linters in March last year, the Census Bureau announced today.

Cotton Is Higher

New York, April 14.—Cotton prices were higher today up 4 to 7 points. May at 14.23 was up 05; July 14.46, up .06; and October 14.74, up .07.

Stock Markets Close in Observance of Good Friday

Both the Boston and the New York Stock Exchanges will be closed tomorrow, according to the usual custom, in observance of Good Friday.

Both markets will be open for business as usual on Saturday. There was a petition circulated on the floor of the New York Stock Exchange to make a three-days-in-a-row holiday by closing for the two-hour session of the week-end.

This petition was rejected. One argument against it was that such action would give a "holiday" tone to the Good Friday observance, whereas this is a holy day and not a holiday.

NEW YORK BANK MERGER PLANS MEET REJECTION

Proposed merger terms between Bank of Manhattan Co. and Seaboard National Bank were rejected at a special meeting of Manhattan Co. directors. It is understood final terms submitted to Seaboard based on complete appraisal of Manhattan Co. assets, were found unacceptable.

Following recent reports that a merger was under consideration, Pres. Baker of Manhattan Co. said no agreement had as yet been reached. "It is impossible to say," he added, "if a satisfactory agreement can be made."

AMERICANS LEAD WORLD IN SENDING TELEGRAMS

According to statistics compiled by Western Union Telegraph Company from government reports, United States contains one-third of all telegraph wires in the world, and Americans send more telegrams than people of principal European countries combined. Figures show we have 2,220,002 miles, with 91,718 nautical miles of submarine cables under American control. Great Britain and North Ireland have only 312,356 miles. Germany leads European mileage with 531,960. Reports says such mileage figures bear direct relationship to economics, social and political development.

MELLON GROUP BEHIND REPUBLIC IRON BUYING

Information at Youngstown is that Mellon banking group of Pittsburgh is behind purchase of control of Republic Iron & Steel Co. in open market. Such plan was followed with respect to Crucible Steel seven years ago, when Horace Wilkinson bought into that company wresting control from H. W. Dupuy.

AMERICAN TELEPHONE EARNINGS ARE STEADY

American Telephone & Telegraph Company reports for first quarter of 1927 net after all charges and taxes of $31,787,681, equal to $3.08 a share on the 10,295,260 average number of shares outstanding during the quarter. This compares with net of $27,867,955 in the first quarter of 1926, equal to $3.02 a share on the 9,229,824 average number of shares outstanding.

HOW CITY OF BOSTON CASH IS ON DEPOSIT

Cash deposits of the city of Boston in leading banks and trust companies as of March 31, 1927, amounted to $2,298,123. Six leading depositaries were: Merchants National, $436,741; Exchange Trust, $153,320; Atlantic National, $128,836; Second National, $126,373; First National, $119,971, and Webster & Atlas National $111,484.

DISCOUNT RATE CUT BY BANK OF FRANCE

Bank of France reduced its discount rate to 5 per cent. from 5½ per cent. Latter rate has been in effect since February 3 last. Rate on advances has been reduced to 6 per cent.

Foreign Exchange

Foreign exchange was irregular: Sterling cables $4.85 11-16, up .00 1-32; French francs .0391⅝, unchanged; Belgas .1390½, unchanged; German marks .2370 unchanged; lire .0499⅜, up .0002¼.

NATIONAL POLICIES OF THE HEARST NEWSPAPERS

1. An agreement of English-speaking peoples to preserve peace among themselves and promote the peace of the world.
2. A constitutional amendment to provide for the election of United States Senators in numbers proportionate to the population of each State, but no State to have less than two Senators. A reapportionment of Congressional representation immediately after every census, or in case of the failure of Congress so to act, to make the apportionment automatic at the end of the first Congressional session, the proportion of population for each representative in each case to be that of the existing Congress.
3. A separate Department of the Army, of the Navy and of the Air Forces, all united under a Secretary of National Defense.
4. Federal action to the limit of Federal Government powers to abolish illiteracy, among the people of the United States, and the creation of a Secretary of Education.
5. Necessary measures to secure the election of Congress in November and its installation on the 1st of January following, and the inauguration of a President on the 1st of January immediately following his election in November.

Where Abraham Lived

A Picture of Long, Long Ago

A STREET IN THE CHALDEAN CITY OF UR. ABRAHAM LIVED THERE THOUSANDS OF YEARS AGO.

This picture shows an ancient city where Abraham lived 2,100 years before the birth of Christ, excavated by the Joint Expedition of the British Museum and the University of Pennsylvania, working together in ancient Ur. Here Abraham lived and thought.

Abraham may have wandered here with his wife, Sarah, she who was miraculously blessed with the birth of a son when Abraham was more than 100 years old and Sarah herself past seventy, a thing which happens rarely.

Living in such narrow streets of the ancient city, with the high mountains in the background and the hot sand and the hot country about it, no wonder Abraham was glad to go out in the fields with his flocks and herds.

It seems rather unkind in him to have sent the poor slave girl out into the desert with her child, of which he was the father, to please his wife, but we must not judge the ancients by our standards.

Abraham's treatment of the slave girl and later of his own son, willing to kill him when ordered to do so by a mysterious voice, were part of earlier days and different customs. Solomon had a thousand wives, such as they were, and yet there is every reason to believe that he is in heaven. They did what seemed right in their day. Let us carefully do what seems right in our day. We are all poor creatures, at best.

The Boston Boy

Give Him a Chance

Sometime in the coming week an appeal will be addressed to every "regular fellow" in this community to DO something for the boys of Boston.

The Boys' Club, which for thirty-five years has maintained a house in Charlestown and for nearly fifty years a centre in Roxbury, is about to canvass the city for an endowment and EXPANSION fund of $850,000.

Through these two centres, the Boys' Club is reaching 1,300 Roxbury and 6,200 Charlestown boys.

"There is," Director Victor M. Cutter says, "no end to the supply of raw material—and at the same time an unlimited demand for our product."

The raw material, Mr. Cutter explains, is the American boy, the Boston boy. The product will be good American citizens.

We all want to give our Boston boys a chance and the Boys' Club is ONE of the ways. If we leave them to the street corner, the gang, the cheap poolroom and the cheaper "show," we must not be surprised if they "go to the bad."

Organized and supervised recreation is what the average city boy needs and the Boys' Club gives it to him.

It takes the lad off the streets, provides constructive activities, leads him in the direction of the vocational training class.

A splendidly representative committee has volunteered to take in hand the drive for funds, but even the best of committees is helpless unless the public is informed and interested.

Give a thought or two then, all you "regular" fellows, to the problem of the city boy and his lack of recreational opportunity.

He may come from a bad home, or even a "broken" home; he may be growing up in a poor neighborhood; he may have been compelled to leave school because of conditions at home, and perhaps he is employed at a "dead-end" job.

Give him a hand! Give them all a hand! For nearly 300 years, men and women have been at work to build a Boston as good as the Boston WE know. This will be one of OUR opportunities to make the Boston of ten, twenty and thirty years from now a better Boston.

"Insult Our Ladies?"

"No," Says Kemal

Kemal Pasha, boss of Turkey, has told Turkish men to wear derby hats in place of the fez and orders Turkish women to take off their veils. This shocked the women and one editor. He printed a cartoon showing Turkish ladies going up in a balloon, throwing overboard "honor," virtue," "conscience" and getting ready to unload "morals."

The three owners of the paper and the cartoonist are jailed for "insulting the virtue of Turkish women."

Kemal is wise and knows that a good cartoon is more dangerously effective than any number of words. You understand a PICTURE the first time you look at it. But words sometimes you never understand at all.

DEATH PENALTY IS DISCUSSED

By DR. FRANK CRANE

HENRY FORD the other day brought up again the question of capital punishment.

He is opposed to it because nobody is willing himself to kill a man.

He also thinks that killing certainly does the man no good. It doesn't reform him, and he doubts whether it does society any good.

When a man reaches the point where he wants to kill another man he doesn't care whether he himself gets killed.

This thing of inflicting the extreme penalty upon a man is a practical one. It is not based upon consideration for the man, but upon regard for society. It is supposed to deter others from serious crimes.

Opponents of capital punishment say that as a matter of deterrent it does no good. They bring statistics to support this argument and claim that the more severe punishments are the wider is the spread of crime. Those in favor of capital punishment deny this.

About the worst thing that could happen to most men is to lose life. People who are afraid of nothing else fear death.

In its effort to protect human life, society uses the old argument of fear and claims that people will be prevented from killing others best of all by being in danger of being killed themselves.

It is all apiece with the whole fear argument. Time was when men were supposed to be made better by the fear of hell and youth is supposed to be kept in check by the fear of their evil deeds in later life.

Both of these motives are insufficient. People are willing to take a risk for the sake of the fun or profit involved, in fact people risk their lives more willingly than anything else.

A man will risk his life where he will not risk his property. Thousands of people in France rushed gaily to the Army to risk their lives, but it was very hard to get them to come forward to risk their property to save the falling franc.

If we want to stop crime the thing to do is to remedy the conditions that make crime and not merely indulge in the vengeance of killing.

Killing is vengeance only. It is not punishment.

The argument against imprisonment for life has its chief support in the fact that by and by the prisoner will be pardoned by the Governor. Take this pardoning power away from the Governor for the present and lodge it in a board selected by the courts. Have all pardons issued by this board and relieve the Governor of the pressure that is brought on him to issue pardons.

In this way imprisonment for life will be made surer and one will not receive a pardon unless he is properly entitled to it.

BOSTON DAY BY DAY

FORTUNATE

HARVARD UNIVERSITY is fortunate in having a man like "JOE" KENNEDY to aid in establishing the new movie course in Cambridge. The list of lecturers includes the biggest producers, directors and distributors in the motion picture industry. All because JOE himself is quietly, but surely, one of the leading figures in that great industry.

HELPFUL.

No young lady need be stranded in Wellesley late at night, if an incident observed a few nights ago indicates the usual methods of WELLESLEY policemen. A girl found herself in WELLESLEY HILLS SQUARE, sans any means of transportation to NEWTON. There was no place open from which to call a taxi. She told her predicament to a policeman. He stepped to a patrol box, called headquarters, and passengers on a Boston-bound bus heard him say: "Call up a taxi and send it over here."

HUNGRY.

One hundred pounds of fresh beef daily is devoured by the lions and tigers at FRANKLIN PARK ZOO. The feeding of these animals attracts hundreds of persons each day. Although most animals resent interference of the slightest sort while feeding, the lions and tigers at the zoo will stop eating any time to permit CURATOR D. J. HARKINS to scratch their backs.

FAME.

The fame of POLICE SUPERINTENDENT MICHAEL H. CROWLEY is not confined to GREATER BOSTON and MASSACHUSETTS. While visiting in Mount Vernon, N. Y., recently, the writer met Captain Silverstein, chief of the Mount Vernon detectives. His first question was "How is MIKE CROWLEY?" The genial superintendent has made many friends on his trips to police chiefs' gatherings.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

SUPPOSE a supercilious foreigner should tell you that Americans on the whole are a grossly uneducated people and that, despite our wealth and powar, we are a blot on civilization.

What would you say?

That would depend on your favorite mode of repartee. If you were of the elite, you would probably smile contemptuously and pass him by. Or if you were a breezy resident of the wide open spaces, you might "sock him in the jaw." But neither argument would alter the fact that the gentleman SPOKE THE TRUTH.

America IS the most illiterate of all civilized nations.

Six out of every hundred of our people cannot read or write.

Fifteen million American voters cannot read the English language.

There are areas in our country where the standard of education is about equal to that of the Congo.

Try to realize what this means.

At first glance it means that several millions of citizens are personally out of luck. But actually it means much more than that. It means that the whole American nation is out of luck.

Darkens Lives

The illiteracy of these people not only darkens their own lives but it darkens all of our lives. Such ignorance is not merely a matter of reading and writing. It goes deeper than that. It affects thought and action. Badly educated people do not think civilized thoughts or do civilized acts. They think muddled thoughts, suspicious thoughts, intolerant thoughts, and do unbalanced, dangerous acts.

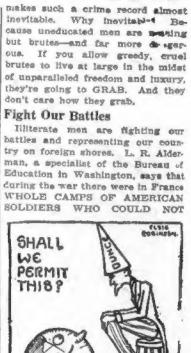
No country is safe which is at the mercy of an ignorant, uncivilized mob. And American is at the mercy of such a mob today.

Illiterate mothers of foreign birth are bringing up the future citizens of America. Our schools do much for those children but their characters and ideas are inevitably shaped in the home. What sort of an idea can such women have of our standards?

Illiterate men are controlling our industrial situation and filling our jails. In the Ohio State Penitentiary three out of four of the criminals can neither read nor write. Ohio is no border State or wilderness district. It lies in the heart of our populated and supposedly 100 per cent. American territory. And yet it maintains a population which makes such a crime record almost inevitable. Why inevitable? Because uneducated men are passing but brutes—and far more dangerous. If you allow greedy, cruel brutes to live at large in the midst of unparalleled freedom and luxury, they're going to GRAB. And they don't care how they grab.

Fight Our Battles

Illiterate men are fighting our battles and representing our country on foreign shores. L. R. Alderman, a specialist of the Bureau of Education in Washington, says that during the war there were in France WHOLE CAMPS OF AMERICAN SOLDIERS WHO COULD NOT



READ. It is little wonder the many Europeans think that America is a nation of wealthy barbarians.

And yet by a paradox we have the best schools in the world.

But these schools do not exist in all our States. Education is a matter for State, not Federal control. As a consequence, it's a badly muddled matter and often scandalously neglected. The National Educational Association wants to remedy this. It doesn't want the "black spots" to continue on our educational maps. So it has written a bill to provide for a Federal Department of Education with a secretary in the President's Cabinet. And when Congress meets next December that bill will pass or fail.

What stand are YOU going to take about it?

Are you going to fight for it in your own State, or are you willing to let the world call us the "most ignorant of civilized nations?"
